WEATHER.

Local indications for the next 24 hours from 3 p. m., and forecast for Ohio and lower Michigan: Cooler, fair weather; northerly winds.

The West India hurricane has without doubt changed direction of movement and passed toward the Bermudas. No information of it since yesterday morning, when it was north of Hayti. The reports from Havana and the south Atlantic give no indications of its approach.

The storm yesterday central over the St. Lawrence valley and Lake Ontario has moved slightly eastward. The rain area attending it has moved into the Atlantic, except that the western edge lingers over the New England coast. Cloudiness and showery weather continues from the Tennessee valley westward, including the Arkansas and Red River valleys from southern Kansas to northern Texas; also over Lake Huron.

A high pressure area lies over the west from Texas northward and is attended by a cool wave, which is felt from northern Texas northeastward to western New York. Generally cooler, fair weather will attend the movement of the high pressure area and will be felt by to-night nearly to the north and middle Atlantic coast.

Generally cooler weather will prevail over almost the entire country during Sunday and Monday and likely Tuesday, and perhaps later, especially in the eastern sections.

THE DEFIANCE FLOATER.

It Was Probably the Body of Alexander Schurtz.

Defiance, O., Aug. 22.—The identity of the floater picked up in the Maumee river near this city Wednesday evening, it is believed, is established. Last Sunday Alexander Schurtz, an old resident of this city, started for St. Mary's, nothing has been heard of him since his departure. His sons identified the clothing and effects of the deceased. The horrible condition of the body led to the belief that it had been in the water for several weeks, but it is now thought it must have come to the surface during the terrific thunder storm Sunday night. Schurtz was at one time a prosperous business man of this city, but of late years has been in reduced circumstances.

Bank Failure.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 22.—A notice was posted on the doors of the Farley national bank at noon to-day stating that the bank had agreed to suspend temporarily, the cause being inability to raise money to make good paper drawn by others discounted by the bank and protested in New York. It is understood on the streets that the paper is a lot of drafts amounting to $100,000 on New York parties.

MILLS TO TAKE A HAND.

He Is Ready to Enter the Buckeye State.

He Will Take the Stump and Make It Warm for His Republican Enemies.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Mr. Mills, who has a great many things to occupy his attention just now, has been in the seclusion of his private apartments here for several days hard at work.

From time to time he has been making speeches in various parts of the counry and is now ready to go to Ohio to work for Campbell as soon as he is called for.

He studiously avoids all discussion of the speakership question, though his friends assert that his election is already practically assured.

In discussing political affairs to-day he said that what he saw and learned on his recent visit to Iowa satisfied him that Gov. Boies was certain of reelection and that five democrats would carry the entire state.

"Boies is bound to be reelected," he said, "and the democrats will carry everything. The people there are very much worked up and dissatisfied with the results of long republican rule. Boies is popular with all classes and will get a great number of republican votes.

"A number of well known republicans told me they would vote for him. They are going to repeal the prohibition law. It does not prohibit, but disturbs business and the people are generally disgusted with its operation. Whisky is sold in spite of the law, and the efforts to prevent its sale only leads to constant conflict."

Speaking of Ohio politics he said he knew nothing from personal observation about the situation, but letters that he had from Mr. Campbell indicated that the democrats were in an excellent position to win a victory this fall. He said that as soon as sent for he would go into the state to work for the party.

MISERY UNTOLD

Stalks Among the Russian Jews.

Many of Them Are Dying for Want of Bread,

And Are Selling Their Children to Buy Food.

Hundreds of Girls placed in Dens of Vice.

The People So Weak from Lack of Proper Nourishment That They Cannot Carry Away Public Contributions.

London, Aug. 22.—The stories of misery received from Russia are almost incredible.

In Bessarabia parents are actually offering their children for sale in order to buy food, and dealers at Constantinople, hearing of this have purchased, through agents in the Russian villages, hundreds of the young girls, those of beauty and good form bringing the highest price, and the awful fact stares the people in the face that they will be taken to the many dens of vice which line the streets of that city.

Many deaths have been caused through famine, and families may be found actually perishing from hunger and huddling together in their common misery.

The stewards of crown lands and forests have been instructed to allow the peasantry to enjoy free pasture, and freely to gather mushrooms, which are largely consumed among the lower classes of Russians, and to gather wild fruits in the forests and woods of the state.

This, however, does not answer the demand for substantial food. The famine cripples also the finances of Russia, and it is believed that for this reason there will be no war for many months.

The collection of state and local taxes in at least 20 provinces will fall considerably behind the usual amount. Besides, large sums are required to prevent whole populations from perishing of starvation.

The government authorities, being aroused, are exerting themselves with energy, and the distribution of relief is going on as rapidly as possible.

When a quantity of grain reached Marinol, in the province of Yekaterinoslay, on Tuesday last, the people were so weak with want that were hardly able to come and get their portions. They gathered near the place of distribution, presenting a pitiful spectacle, with their wan faces and wasted forms.

A force of police were present to preserve order; but instead, the police had, in several instances, to keep the applicants from falling through sheer hunger and weakness.

Nor is the misery confined to the lowest class. Among the applicants at Marinpol were noblemen and tradesmen, the latter ruined in business through loss of custom on account of famine and the former deprived of the margin between their debts and their income, on which they had depended.

The prohibition of the export of rye was none too soon, if the more frightful results of famine were to be averted.

EXCITED ITALIANS.

They Want Their August Pay in Advance.

They Have Organized and Fears Are Expressed That Blood May Be Shed.

Boston, Aug. 22.—Fears are entertained of serious trouble among the Newton sewer strikers. The Italians were paid their July wages yesterday, but were still dissatisfied and demanded that they also be paid for August. The excitement became so intense that the Italian paymaster sought police protection. Contractor Killen visited the Italian camp yesterday but upon being warned that his life was in danger withdrew quickly from the camp. After Killen's departure the Italians held a meeting and as a result marched 400 strong to Nonant Square with the intention of demanding their wages of Killen. The police were notified and drove the excited men back to their camp. All is quiet now, though trouble may ensue at any minute.

ANOTHER FAMILY SKELETON.

Louis H. Sherman Makes Himself Suddenly Scarce.

New York, Aug. 22.—Louis H. Sherman, head of the fancy goods firm of Sherman, Samuels & Co., Newark, Paterson and New York, has been missing since Saturday, when he left Newark taking with him several thousand dollars of the firm's money.

Immediately after his disappearance his wife drew $10,000 from the firm on his order and returned to her seaside home at Rockaway. His father, who succeeds him as senior partner, says the young man is unwell and may be suffering from mental aberration. Others say domestic trouble led him to go away.

Safe to Run Slow.

The McKinley train is sweeping through Ohio like a limited vestibule. The democratic wreckers should "look out for the cars"—Ohio State Journal.

That reminds us of the "Foraker express" which was "sweeping through Ohio" two years ago, but it got a hot (ballot) box and was finally dumped into a gravel bank with "a 25 per cent. drawback" and the Campbell caravan won hands down. Do you remember, Mr. Journal? It is always safe for political trains to run slow at this stage of the game; the tin-derbox may explode, you know.—Mansfield Shield and Banner.

Horrible Discovery.

New York, Aug. 22.—The keeper of the morgue yesterday found that a child which had been brought there by its father, Wilhelm Dooley, with a still birth certificate, was alive. He hurried with the infant to a hospital and the child was taken care of. The parents were notified but up to a late hour last night had not claimed their offspring.

CRASHED TOGETHER.

A Passenger and Freight Train Pile Up.

Wabash, Ind., August 22—A bad headed collision between south-bound express train No. 4 and north bound freight No. 15 occurred two miles south of Leesburg at 6 o'clock last evening.

Train No. 4 had an order to meet No. 15 at Leesburg, and Engineer Hayden, observing another freight on the siding, thought it was No. 15 and pulled out. He had not left the station five minutes when No. 15 running twenty miles an hour, dashed around a curve, and with a terrific crash the engines came together, totally wrecking both.

The baggage car of No. 4 was turned upside down and several freight cars were smashed up. The trainmen escaped injury by jumping. The track is blocked to-night and a passenger train was made up here and run south.

News from Stryker.

Stryker, O., Aug. 22.—Picnics! yes picnics, of all varieties and orders; moral picnics, social picnics, political picnics. To-day it is the people's picnic at School park. Next Wednesday the temperance people will picnic at Shilling's grove.

Common Pleas Judge Sutphen, of Defiance, gave his friends in Stryker a business call.

F D Danaken, of Paulding, is one of the speakers for the people's meeting.

Fred Langs will erect a two-story brick wareroom to the west of his double store.

Prett King, of Independence, Ia., proprietor of Stryker opera house, is seeing the boys.

The Wauseon band came up Friday evening and gave a fine display of their skill as experts at their instruments.

English Comment.

London, Aug. 22.—In an article on politics in America the Times says the democrats are more likely to win against Blaine and McKinley by propounding a sober program, with a sober representative, than by trying to emulate appeals to the American flag and the magnificent achievements of electrifying diplomacy. The Times credits President Harrison with a manly concealment of disappointment, and remarks: "The office of president has a sobering influence, which will probably tone down the vivacity of the manifestoes issued in Mr. Blaine's interest should he be elected."

Evidently a Beat.

Sylvania, Aug. 22—(Special)—A few days ago a man appeared on our streets soliciting orders to repair blackboards; stopped at the Bidwell house with his wife and rig. Monday morning they started out saying they would be back to dinner, but he forgot to return and pay his bill and nothing has been heard of them since. There was missing from the barn after he left a curry comb and brush and a half bushel measure.

DEFENSE BY TORPEDOES.

A Warlike Station at Fort Delaware.

The Entrance to Philadelphia To Be Protected by Modern Methods.

Philadelphia, Aug. 22—Preliminary work for the location of torpedo stations on Fort Delaware Island and "New Fort Opposite," below Delaware City, has been begun by Major Raymond, of the United States army engineer corps, and his staff.

The proposed works are for the protection of the Delaware Bay ship canal, and are to form a part of the Atlantic coast defenses. The stations will not be garrisoned, but will be in such shape that they can be occupied at any moment.

The proposed forts will be of earthworks with galleries and subterranean passages running out into the bay to the point where it may be thought necessary to launch the torpedoes.

The fortification at the upper end of Fort Delaware will command the ship channel, and that at "New Fort Opposite" will command the channel as it runs past Fort Delaware, and is considered by military men the most effective point at which to guard Philadelphia from attacks of foreign men-of-war.

The money for the new stations was included in the appropriation of the last congress for coast defenses. Engineer Truesdell, Mayor Raymond's assistant, said yesterday that no detailed description of the forts could be given out. "That," he said, "would put us in the power of our enemies. The works will be similar to those in Portland, New York and other harbors. As far as possible the war department endeavors to keep its plans for coast defenses and works of this kind a secret."

The work on the forts will be begun about the middle of September. Engineer Valentine will have charge of the work, and if the appropriation is sufficient the forts will be completed by next summer.

The fort as it stands to-day is worse than useless. The old stone walls are rapidly falling into decay, and the earth mounds as a means of defense would soon give way against the assaults of modern guns and gunners. Within a month a committee from the war department visited the fort and condemned it. In their report they said that the fort as it stands to-day is of no value whatever as a means of defense, and that it would cost less to build a new fort than it would to repair the one now standing.

Fort Deleware is on what was originally known as Pea Patch Island. It was ceded to the government by the state of Delaware, with the condition that a garrison was to be kept there. This condition in recent years has been practically ignored. The only residents of the island at present are Ordnance Sergeant Welch and his family, the sergeant being considered the garrison. The Welches lead a sort of Crusoe existence on the island and spend the summer in fishing and fighting musquitoes.

A BREAK FOR LIBERTY.

An Engineer Thwarted Their Plans.

Convicts Board a Train Inside the Prison and the Engineer Ditched the Train.

Walla Walla, Wash., Aug. 22.—Several convicts at the penitentiary overpowered the warden yesterday and attempted to escape on a work train that had been run into the prison brickyard.

The engineer, however, ditched the train and the guards shot two convicts dead and wounded another, after which order was restored.

Another Batch of Jews.

Baltimore, Aug. 22.—United States Commissioner of Immigration Owens has allowed 12 of the Slavonias Russian Jews to land, they having some funds and tickets for the interior. There remain 39 on the Slavonia and four on the Caspian. Their cases are being invested. The commissioner would accept bonds of $1,000 each, but the Hebrews of Baltimore do not seem inclined to furnish any more bonds.

Big Picnic of Farmers.

Findlay, Aug. 22.—The Farmers' alliance of Hancock county, held a grand union picnic in Big Lick township yesterday. The principal officers of the organization were present and the occasion drew together between 2,000 and 3,000 people.

Paris, Aug. 22.—Lieut. Rujon, of the Alpine Chasseurs, has been killed by a fall over a precipice in the Alps.

SIXTY LIVES LOST.

The Number May Be Increased to a Hundred.

Terrible Explosion and Fire in New York.

Men, Women and Children Die Together

In a Scene of the Greatest Confusion.

No Time Elapsed After the Explosion Before the Walls Caved in on the Mass of Humanity.

New York, Aug. 22.—At 12:30 o'clock this afternoon an explosion occurred in the five-story building, 66 Park Place, occupied by John C. Eberle, manufocturer of maps.

The explosion was immediately followed by a fire and in a few minutes the building collapsed. It is feared that over 30 persons are buried in the building. The fire has spread to the adjoining buildings and extends from No. 66 to 76.

At the time the explosion occurred many of those who worked in the building were at lunch. It was estimated that more than one hundred and forty boys, girls, men and women were in the building at the time.

Those who saw the catastrophe say that the earth trembled when the explosion occurred and that the fire was in the street in a couple of seconds.

The dust from the wreck rose in such clouds that for at least three minutes nothing could be seen of what was left standing, but from the pall which hovered over the wrecked building came clouds of smoke and sheets of flames and yells and shrieks of agony.

Out of the clouds of fire and smoke half a dozen persons emerged, while from the six-story building on the northeast corner of Greenwich and Park Place poured at least 100 working people of both sexes and of all ages, uttering cries of alarm.

When the firemen arrived the Taylor building, No. 66 to 76 Park Place, was ablaze, and the Greenwich street extension of the building on fire.

A general alarm was sounded and the fireman looked around to see if life could be saved.

Close to the entrance of No. 70 Park place, and pinned under a lot of masonry, was a man whose head and shoulders were visible. While the firemen were endeavoring to unloose him a crash was heard above and down came the wreck of part of the Taylor building cornice.

The firemen jumped for their lives, and none were hurt. When they dashed back again the man had been entirely buried, and the bricks from the Greenwich street building began to fall so thickly that the attempt to rescue him had to be abandoned.

Shortly after this a man who said he was an engineer crawled out of the cellar under the wreck and fell exhausted. He was sent to the Chambers street hospital. He was unable to give an account of how he escaped. At 1 o'clock the fire was under control. Half of the Greenwich street building had been burned, while the Taylor building was a complete wreck.

The losses were computed at $150,000 for the Taylor building and contents, and $40,000 for the Greenwich street building.

As to the lose of life the more conservative estimate, that of Fire Chief Cushman, was that 60 persons perished.

Persons who know how many worked in the building daily ran up the list to 130.

Nobody had been taken out at 1:30 and it appeared impossible to overhaul the ruins for several hours. Eight persons injured by the explosion were taken to the Chambers street hospital.

Among the concerns destroyed were Hudson's restaurant, Lindsay's type foundry, E. F. Heaghy's plumbing shops, Leibler's glassware, Ellis & McDonald's blank book concern, a cigar manufactory and a printing office.

There were about 25 persons in the restaurant. Mike Carroll, who was employed at 66 Park Place, says that there is very little chance of many of them escaping.

There were seven men employed in the kitchen and Carroll says that they must have been killed. He also saw four girls working in the basement mixing bronze and he does not think they could have got out.

Carroll saw seven persons passing the building at the time of the explosion, and all were knocked down by the shock. Before they recovered the wall fell on them and he thinks they were killed.

Among other occupants of the building were: Rosenfeld & Co., metal leaf manufacturers; the Southern Publishing Co., art designers; Ellis & McDonald, book binders.

It is said by some that the explosion occurred in Rosenfeld's place.

Only four persons are known to have escaped from Hudson's restaurant. There were at least 25 in the place. At 1:30 the police estimated the loss of life at between 60 and 70.

One of those who escaped said the explosion was in a boiler beneath the restaurant. It is said that several factory girls are among the dead.

The Ninth avenue elevated railroad stopped running and the firemen worked upon the structure in pouring streams on the fire. The work of removing the debris in the search for bodies has been commenced, but proceeds slowly owing to the heat.

Ambulances from Chambers street and St. Vincent's hospitals are in attendance. Twenty-four injured have been taken to Chambers street hospital.

Fifteenth-Sixteenth District.

Newark, Aug 22.—The republican senatorial convention for the fifteenth-sixteenth joint senatorial district, composed of the counties of Delaware, Licking, Muskingum and Perry was held in this city. There were about 60 delegates in attendance. George Iden, of this city, was nominated on the first ballot for state senator. George M. Curtis, of Delaware, and R. L. Holland, of Muskingum, were elected president and secretary respectively of the convention. The nomination of Iden is looked upon as a great Sherman victory.

To Fortify.

Brussels, Aug. 22.—The senate has voted $15,000,000 to fortify the Meuse.

'YOU'RE A THIEF," SAYS LEASE.

The Husband of the Alliance Agitator Pays His Respects to Manager Bailey.

Wichita, Aug. 22.—Mrs. M. E. Lease's services are probably lost to the Alliance Mutual Protective association. Recently she was engaged by the state manager, Fred L. Bailey, to deliver a lecture on behalf of the association, and, having done so, Mrs. Lease demanded her pay.

Bailey paid her the usual local fee, $15, but refused to pay her expenses. Mrs. Lease heard that Bailey was going out of town this morning and sent her husband down to the depot to inverview him. Bailey was corralled in the crowded station and $5 demanded of him, which he declined to pay.

"Youre a d—d thief!" yelled Mr. Lease. "I want all these people to know that you're a thief. I'd lick you for a nickel."

Bailey was edging toward the door all this time and said he was going for a policeman, but as soon as he reached the open air he fled.

Dynamite Explosion.

Norristown, Pa., Aug. 22.—By an explosion of dynamite, caused by supposed carelessness, at the stone quarry of John T. Dwyer at Howellsville, yesterday afternoon, Antonio Lawbert, an Italian, was fatally injured and Olaf Yansen had his right arm blown from his body, his foot mangled and was otherwise badly bruised about the body. He may recover. Three other workmen were slightly injured.

Gen. J. A. Fay Dying.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 22.—Gen. J. Augustus Fay is dying at his residence here. He is one of the most noted men in New Jersey, an able lawyer, and a prominent democrat. He was born in Baltimore in 1840. When 13 years old he was a teacher in his father's academy for young men. He was admitted to the bar in 1866. He was made a brevet lieutenant colonel in the U. S. army for meritorious service before Petersburg, Va.

THE TAX TO COME DOWN.

Congressman Crisp on the Day's Issues.

The Next Democratic House Will Lessen the Burden

That Now Hangs Around the Neck of the Poor Man Like a Ponderous Mill Stone.

Kansas City, Aug. 22.—(Special)—Congressman Crisp of Georgia, a prominent candidate for the speakership of the next democratic house of representatives, is at the Coates house. He reluctantly excused himself this morning from a charming bevy of ladies to accord a brief interview to a reporter.

He said he had had a delightful trip through Missouri thus far and was enthusiastic in his praise of the fertility of the soil, the bounteous crops the healthfulness of the climate and above all, the beauty of the women of Missouri. His visit to the locally historic battle field of Lone Jack, Lee's Summit, Springfield, Lebanon and Lexington, he declared, would ever remain fresh in his memory, and he never could forget the hearty hospitality of the people, and hoped in the near future that Missouri would be able to reap the benefits of their labors by a reduction of the tariff.

"The tariff question is one of great importance to Missouri," he continued, "from the fact that the special products of the state are of such a character that the surplus must be sold abroad, there being no market at home of sufficient magnitude to absorb it. This surplus must then of necessity be sent out and sold in competition with like products of free trade countries that have the advantage of cheap labor.

"The price that is brought from the sale of the surplus abroad regulates the price at home. The prices on wheat and cotton are fixed abroad and the surplus of those staple products can not be exchanged for the manufactured articles that we need and the latter brought here without being taxed at an average rate of 47 per cent. That burden placed on the exchange of commodities is practically a burden on our surplus and consequently is injurious to the people of Missouri and all agricultural districts are required to pay more for dutiable articles and articles of like character manufactured here than they are actually worth, to the extent of the tax imposed. There was a 2-cent a pound tax on sugar and those engaged in the sugar trade got the benefit of it. The consumer had to pay that tax, for when it was taken off sugar dropped 2 cents.

"This demonstrates that the tariff increases the price, both on the foreign and domestic product to the consumer alone, and a reduction of the tariff on the necessaries of life cheapens their cost to the consumer and that is what the masses want, and what the coming congress will endeavor to accomplish."

Referring to the speakership canvass, Mr. Crisp said that all the gentlemen mentioned for the place were good men and true, that each had his friends and that it would be a friendly contest with soft gloves and for points and points only.

"There will be no bitterness of feeling," said he, "no matter who may be the choice of the party for speaker, and whoever is elected to the position is entitled to and will receive the active aid and cooperation of all the defeated candidates."

In reply to a question regarding the attitude of the Farmers' alliance toward his candidacy he said:

"I notice that at the meeting of the Farmers' alliance of Georgia a resolution was offered to the effect that the alliance would not support any candidate for speaker who had not approved the Ocala platform, and that the resolution was tabled. As a matter of fact, every Farmers' alliance member of congress from Georgia, with one exception, has publicly announced through the press that they would support me for speaker, and consequently I am assured of their friendly feeling toward my candidacy."

A COMFORTER FOR BEN.

Mr. Blaine Has Said He Will Run.

Steve Elkins Brings Such Information Direct from Bar Harbor—How About This, Ben?

New York, Aug. 22.—A special to the Herald from Saratoga says:

The arrival to-night of Stephen B. Elkins has caused a decided sensation among the Harrison coherts.

Mr. Elkins comes direct from Bar Harbor, and it is said, on the very best authority, that he carries very important utterances from Mr. Blaine in regard to the nomination in 1892.

My informant is a man who is deep in the confidence of the secretary of state, and he says he has it direct that Mr. Blaine has signified his intention of accepting the nomination if it is offered him.

HE WAS A TOLEDO BOY.

James Roberts Arrested on Suspicion

Of Being the Columbus Grove Bank Robber.

He Has Been Partially Identified by People From the City Where He Committed His Crime.

New Washington, O., Aug. 22.—The authorities of this little town, located at the crossing of the Pittsburg, Akron & Western, and the Pennsylvania road, in Crawford county, feel pretty certain that they have secured the Columbus Grove bank robber and murderer.

The arrest was made yesterday, and this morning the fellow was partially identified by two business men of Columbus Grove, who came here for that purpose.

The man's name is James Roberts, and if he claims any home, it is Toledo, where he was at one time employed as an edged tool dresser in the Milburn Wagon Co.

He admits having been a tramp for several months past.

He has respectable relative there, and it is thought his object in coming here was to rest quietly until an opportunity presented itself to get out of the country.

Mr. Crawford, the Columbus Grove hardware merchant, from whom the murderer bought the revolver, will be here this afternoon to further identify him.

HE GOT UP THIS MORNING

And Took a Drink of Water at Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Bright sunlight kissed the tri-colored streamers floating from the flagstaffs on the Grand Union hotel this morning, and a gentle, cooling breeze swayed them to and fro.

It was a bright, typical Saratoga morning, and a most pleasant change from the cloudy damp atmosphere which prevailed during the reception yesterday.

The president rose about 7:30 and in company with Private Secretary Halford walked through the hotel office and down Broadway to the Congress spring, where he drank a glass of spring water.

Returning to the hotel the president took breakfast in the private dining room and afterwards retired to his parlors. At 10:30 he started out for a drive.

Drowned With Their Gold.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 22.—According to reports brought in by Kish-Peyex Indians, four white men were inland and secured a great quantity of gold. After remaining some time they started for Victoria, going down the Skena in a canoe. In passing through the Great Death canon the canoe capsized and the four men were drowned. Two of them came from New York, but the indians could not tell their names.

BROUGHT DOWN BY BULLETS

Catillo Fought Like a Demon for His Liberty.

A Notorious Outlaw Killed by Officers to Whom He Refused to Surrender.

Walsenburg, Col., Aug. 22.—The famous bandit Catillo was shot and killed yesterday morning at 3 o'clock, on the Halo Duro creek, this county.

Deputy Sheriffs Wilson and Yocum, of Park county, and Deputy Tom Brewer, of this county, and three others, surrounded him and he refused to surrender.

He is wanted in Park county for the murder of two Swedes. The fight lasted for three hours. The bandit was well armed and had a large supply of ammunition.

Every opportunity was given him to surrender, but his final answer was a shot from his revolver. Deputies Yocum and Wilson are both good shots, but the bandit was so protected by rocks and trees that it was three hours after the first shot was fired before any officer's bullets took effect, although many of them grazed his body wherever it was exposed.

He fought desperately, and although he was subject to attack from six quarters he fired so rapidly and with such accuracy that it was impossible to close in on him. The canon is infested with other notorious and desperate characters, members of his band, who will either be captured or meet the fate of their leader.

Georgia State Alliance.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 22.—The state alliance has adjourned. One important resolution adopted unanimously "asks the Georgia legislature to adopt the St. Louis platform as reaffirmed at Ocala, and to instruct our representatives and senators in congress to shape legislation in conformity therewith."

It was decided to purchase the Southern Alliance Farmer, the state organ, from its present proprietors.

IN THE SNAKE'S FOLDS.

Two-Year-Old Boy Almost Killed.

His Mother, to Save Him, Cut the Reptile Into Pieces with a Butcher Knife.

Grant, Mo., Aug. 22.—Mrs. William S. John, the wife of a farmer, living at the edge of town, had an experience with a snake that almost caused the loss of her own life after she had saved that of her baby.

Her little 2 year old boy was playing in the yard and she heard him crying. Going to the door she was surprised to see him lying on the ground.

She went to lift him up and was horrified at the discovery that he was in the folds of an enormous black snake.

The reptile was around the child's body three times, and when Mrs. St. John reached him the baby was almost choked and was black in the face.

Mrs. St. John grasped the snake by the throat and tried to pull it from the child, but she could not move it.

Grasping it tightly she lifted the baby and carried it to the house.

She still held the reptile's neck and getting a butcher knife she first cut off its head and then tore it from the child's body.

After the snake was loosened Mrs. St. John worked for over half an hour before she could revive the child and then it was several hours before it fully recovered.

When all danger to the baby was over Mrs. St. John fell into a convulsion, from which she recovered only to have another, and it was several hours before the physicians pronounced her out of danger.

The snake measured eight feet in length and was fully four inches in diameter. It was the largest ever seen in the neighborhood.

M'KINLEY AT NILES.

Opening Speech of the Ohio Campaign.

The High Tariff Advocate Makes His Bow.

Reciprocity and Wool Receive Very Little Attention, While Silver Is Given a Vast Amount of Importance.

Niles, O., Aug. 22.—(Special)—This place, the birthplace of Wm. McKinley, is to-day the scene of greatest activity. The Major is here to open his campaign and the people have turned out by thousands to hear what he has to say in favor of the high taxes and low wages which have followed the enactment of his bill into a law.

The streets were gay with bunting and loud with clashing bands all day, and late this afternoon the Major was introduced to his large audience and spoke as follows:

"The campaign in Ohio, formally opened to-day on the part of the republican party, will be unusually interesting because of the importance to the state and the country of its results in November. It is fortunate that the issues are of that character which will excite no bitterness, but are well calculated to invite calm and dispassionate judgment. It is fortunate, too, that the issues are so well defined and clearly marked that no misunderstanding or evasion can arise.

"The platforms of the two parties, which constitute their official declarations, are singularly free from ambiguity and confusion. Both declare in bold and fearless terms their party faith, and both must be considered as the lines upon which the political contest is to be waged. I would not change or avoid them if I could, and any competitor cannot change or avoid them if he would.

"Nor are the issues limited to local questions alone. They are general and national. Both platforms speak for their respective parties in the state upon those public questions which are the exclusive subjects of federal jurisdiction and federal legislation.

"The democratic platform declares for the free and unlimited coinage of the silver of the world, to be coined, as free as gold is now, upon the same terms and under existing ratio. The platform of the republican party stands in opposition to anything short of a full and complete dollar, and approves of the legislation of the last congress touching silver, which legislation enjoins the monthly purchase of silver up to 4,500,000 ounces—an amount fully equal if not in excess of the entire silver product of the United States.

"That legislation is a mighty bulwark for the protection of silver. It has preserved and enlarged its monetary uses upon a safe basis, and has provided that the silver dollar shall be kept as good as the best dollar of our coinage, always equal in legal tender quality and debt paying power.

He then quoted the open letters of Grover Cleveland and Harter and Warner on the subject.

The Tariff

In speaking of the tariff he said:

"On the subject of the tariff the issue is equally well defined. The democratic platform declares for a purely revenue tariff, and will not consent that it shall perform any other service. Duties must be levied with a view to revenue, and upon those foreign products which will yield the greatest revenue, and which will not, incidentally or otherwise, favor domestic industry and domestic labor. Its one mission, and one mission only is that of raising revenue.

"If in its operations it should favor a home production, it would be obnoxious to the principle upon which it was originally levied, and must be repealed or modified.

"A revenue tariff, pure and simple, such as the democratic party of Ohio advocates, can benefit and encourage, and build up no domestic industry. It does not encourage labor, save in foreign countries. It does not move a single spindle save in foreign countries. It increases the demand for foreign goods, and diminishes the use of domestic goods.

"It is for the foreign shop and against the American shop. It supplies work for foreign labor and takes it from our own labor. It would not light a single fire in an American furnace or mill, but would extinguish those which now burn, unless our labor would work at the same wages as the labor of competing countries. In short it is well conceived to benefit every other nation but our own.

"A revenue tariff has not in our experience been a success even as an agency for raising the money required for public purposes. It has more than once failed in our history to supply the revenue wants of the government. It has found our country prosperous and our treasury well supplied with revenue, and a few years under its operation has left the treasury bankrupt and the business of the country in a deplorable condition.

As a means of raising revenue a revenue tariff is not as certain and reliable as a protective tariff. The latter has never failed in time of peace no matter how great were the expenditures, to supply the revenue required and has never failed but three times, and then in war, to provide the enormous revenue required for the public service.

"A protective tariff has proven an unfailing agent in raising public revenues, and while doing this it has served that other important office of so adjusting the duties upon foreign goods, as to give the largest protection to our own industries, the widest field of employment for our own labor, and the most generous encouragement to our own people. It serves the treasury, and while doing so, serves our own people in their industries and employments. There ought not to be any question, inasmuch as we have to secure revenue from foreign imports, as to the character of the foreign goods upon which the duties shall be imposed.

"The principle of a protective tariff requires that articles not luxuries, which we cannot produce in the United States, should come in free from tariff taxation, and imposes the tariff upon such foreign products as come in competition with the products of our own land and labor. It does seem to me that there should be no difference of opinion upon the subject among American citizens. As we are compelled to tax some product, every consideration, I think, should require that the foreign product be taxed, the taxing of which would benefit our own producers and do no injury to our own consumers.

"A protective tariff is not only a surer agent for raising revenue than a revenue tariff, but it builds up our own industries and increases industrial activity in our own midst. It furnishes employment for labor and at better wages than can be secured any where else or under any other system. A revenue tariff breaks down and destroys at home and builds up and encourages abroad."

The mayor then quoted figures in millions, and dollars in billions, which fairly staggered the people in attendance but did not go to show that the tariff was not a tax and that it did not make the necessities of the poor man cost more while at the same time it did not increase his wages.

On The Wool Question.

"There was much said by Gov. Campbell in his speech at Cleveland about the low price of wool. He stated incorrectly, and I have no doubt by inadvertence, that the farmer of Ohio was only getting 20 cents a pound for his wool.

"At the time he made this statement the farmer was receiving for his choice clips 28 and 29 cents.

"The inference from his speech would be that the increased duty on wool is the cause of depressed prices. If this be so, then the tariff is not a tax.

"This was not the democratic doctrine in Ohio in 1883 and 1884. They then believed that the tariff did help the wool grower, and that a great outrage had been committed upon him when the duty was reduced 11 per cent. by the tariff law of '83. They so declared, in a document, issued by the democratic state committee of that year, and demanded of the wool growers of the state, that the party that committed that great outrage should be defeated at the polls.

"And I may say, in passing, that they were defeated. Their statement was that the Ohio wool growers had been fleeced of $6,000,000 by the reduction of 11 per cent. of the duty. The governor was one of those who believed it then."

His Reference to Reciprocity.

Major McKinley touched the reciprocity feature of his bill, without which James G. Blaine said it was the most infamous measure on record, as follows:

"There is contained in the new law a reciprocity provision by which the administration has already made valuable treaties with Brazil, San Domingo and Spain. It is a provision which in no way encroaches upon the protective principle, nor can it in any way destroy or undermine our defensive or protective tariffs.

"Reciprocity is based upon our free list and practically upon non-competing products. It provides that the United States having made sugar, molasses, tea, coffee and hides free, if the country producing these articles and sending them to the United States shall impose duties or other exactions upon agricultural or other products of the United States reciprocally unequal and unreasonable, the president has the power to suspend by proclamation the proviso relating to the free introduction of such articles, sugar, molasses, tea, coffee, hides, etc., against such countries imposing these duties and exactions, and the original duties shall be imposed."

Claims to be Making Tin Plate.

"There is much criticism about the duty on tin plate, and fully as much misrepresentation as there is criticism. It is generally supposed that under the new law tin ore or block tin is now dutiable.

"Under section 209 of the law it will be seen that the duty on block tin goes into effect on the 1st day of July, 1893. That is, the manufacturers of tin plate have free tin ore or block tin for two years. Then there is this further provision:

"That unless it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the president of the United States, who shall make known the fact by proclamation that the product of the mines of the United States shall have exceeded 5,000 tons in one year prior to July 1, 1895, then all pig tin shall after July 1, 1895, be admitted free of duty.

"The duty on tin plates went into effect on July 1st of this year. There is also a provision in the law that on and after October 1st, 1897, unless it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the president, who shall thereupon make proclamation of the fact that the aggregate quantity of such in plates produced in the United States during either of the years next preceding June 30th, 1897, is equal to one-third the amount of such tin plates imported and entered for consumption during any fiscal year after the passage of this act and prior to October 1st, 1897, then they shall become free.

"It is said we cannot make tin plate. How absurd, for we are already making it, and it will not be long until we shall make the larger part of the consumption. We are making tin plate to-day. It is to be made here in Niles. Democratic discouragement cannot stop it; foreign interference cannot check American genius and resolution."

He closed his long address by a speculation as to what the next democratic congress would do with the silver and tariff questions.

The major was frequently applauded during his speech, but it was evident that a majority of those in attendance were men of his own party, and consequently of his own way of thinking, who had come from all parts of the state, in order that the opening day might be made one about which republicans could talk during the rest of the campaign.

THREE HUNDRED KILLED.

Late Details from the Wind Storm.

Two Hundred Bodies Have Already Been Found Along the Coast.

Paris, Aug. 22.—Further details of the Martinique disaster indicate that the number of killed is 300, and of the injured 1,000.

About 200 bodies have already been found in the coast towns and the interior is not heard from.

At Ducos only four houses remain standing. Eighteen were killed there. At St. Pierre 34 were killed. At Morne Rouge 28, at Fonds St. Denis 7, at Precheurs 6, at Carbet 4, St. Joseph 20, Marin 3, Vauchin 10, Lementin 26, Francois 22, Robert 28, Riviere Pilote 7, miscellaneous 18.

The suffering among the poor is great. Property is destroyed and roads blockaded.

Among the vessels wrecked at Martinique was the American brig Ned White, which was owned in Belfast, Me.

Another American vessel destroyed was the brig Jennie Phinney, owned in Portland, Me.

Foster's Bonds.

Washington, Aug. 22—Secretary Foster is giving close attention to financial matters in connection with his plan to extend the 4½ per cent bonds at 2 per cent after September 1. There are $51,000,000 of these bonds of which a fraction less than $20,000,000 have been presented to the treasury department for extension.

The balance in the treasury to-day is $55,000,000, not including the $100,000,000 gold reserve, so no doubt is expressed, if no more 4½ per cent bonds are presented for extension, that there will be ample funds to redeem the $31,000,000 4½ per cents outstanding.

The matter, however, excites much interest in treasury circles, and it is freely stated that Secretary Foster will visit New York next week to confer with bankers and others on the subject.

The Strike at Cramps.

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—Edwin H. Cramp, superintendent of Cramp's shipyard, denied emphatically that there was a strike at the yard. "Last Saturday some of the men," he said, "went on an excursion and on Monday instead of coming back to work remained away. Tuesday they did the same thing and on Wednesday a number of them made a demand for an increase of pay. We declined to treat with them on the ground that they had voluntarily quit work and were no longer employes.

"That ended the matter so far as we are concerned. Some of the men have returned to work and the rest are still out."

Everything appeared to be going on as usual at the yard this morning and none of the strikers were to be seen about.

Sub-Treasury Men Barred Out.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 22.—The Texas State alliance ratified every plank in the Ocala platform by a unanimous vote. Election of officers resulted in the re-election of Evan Jones president, and the indorsement of his administration. All anti-sub-treasury alliance men now here have been refused the privilege of the floor, and have called a meeting of their own. Nearly all the delegates to the State alliance convention are for a third party.

A New Candidate.

Norwalk, O., Aug. 22.—(Special)—Dr. D. W. Vail, postmaster of this city, is a candidate for state senator and, it is said, will divide the Huron county delegation with H. L. Stewart.

What Your Greatgrandmother Did.

She hetcheled the flax and carded the wool, and wove the linen, and spun the tow, and made the clothes for her husband and ten children. She made butter and cheese, she dipped talow candles, to light the house at night, and she cooked all the food for her household by an open fireplace and a brick oven. Yes; and when she was forty years of age, she was already an old lady whose best days were over. Her shoulders were bent and her joints enlarged by hard work, and she wore spectacles and a cap. Her great granddaughter, with all the modern conveniences for comfort, refinement and luxury, may be as charming and attractive at forty five as at twenty. Especially is this true if she preserves her health and beauty by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which wards off all female ailments and irregularities, cures them if they already exist, keeps the life current healthful and vigorous, and enables the woman of middle age to retain the freshness of girlhood upon brow and cheek, the light of youth in her eyes, and its elasticity in her step. THE RUSSIAN RYE UKASE.

Why the Czar Was Tempted to Issue It.

A Desire to Test the Home Ability for Production,

Much Suffering in Store for the Peasants, but the Crop Failure Not so Bad as Reported.

Boston, Aug. 22.—A Russian writer in the Globe reviews the action of the czar in issuing his rye ukase, and gives his probable reasons therefore in the following interesting column:

The imperial ukase prohibiting the exportation of rye, which has caused such a flutter all over the world, appears to be of greater political import than financial.

It is improbable that the economic exigency at home should have demanded the imperial intervention in such an unprecedented manner.

Such action, if not prompted by either internal or foreign political motive, would certainly presuppose a most aggravated condition of distress, either actual or threatening, to the country, whereas a glance at the facts of the situation suggests quite a different solution of the problem.

It is true that the aspect of affairs is anything but comforting in Russia.

The reports coming in from all parts of the country there speak almost of the certainty of famine.

The reports coming from Moscow, the northern district of Russia, are, according to the statement in the Russkiya Vedemosti, anything but consolatory.

In some parts the grain did not ripen at all; in others the fields have been blasted by drought, and the most prosperous of the districts promise but an indifferent crop.

The price of flour is rising at a very rapid rate, and is quickly assuming famine value. The failure of the meadows in hay and straw has raised the price of cattle, while wages have sunk low, work is scarce and both rural and city laborers have a disheartening prospect before them.

No wonder that the aspect of affairs in Russia is represented in such clouded colors.

The area where the crops have failed comprises almost the greatest part of southern and northern arable Russia, and the number of the people who are likely to suffer from it mount up into the millions.

In view of all this, the Moskovskiya Vedemosti, the best informed paper in Russia on such matters, stated a couple of weeks ago that the minister of the interior has issued circulars to all the governors of the provinces, instructing them to ascertain the exact localities where the future is threatened to be the gloomiest, to ascertain the number of people that are likely to be affected by it, and the means necessary for their relief.

No doubt the seriousness of the position warrants this unusual energy displayed by the higher authorities in their anxiety for the welfare of the great Russian population.

It is feared that the present failure of the crops will accentuate the distress of the people to a degree never reached before under similar misfortunes.

It is a very long time indeed since Russia has suffered from such a concatenation of unfavorable circumstances, and never before had it assumed such gigantic proportions.

In 1867 it was mainly the northern part of Russia which suffered from a bad crop.

The year 1873 affected mostly the eastern part of the empire, and was almost wholly confined to a county or two.

In 1875 the harvest was a very bad one, and it told severely on the people, but even then it was mostly only in the southern parts of Russia, while the rest of the country was almost prosperous.

The year 1880 was, as yet, the worst that had been recorded, when the failure of the grain crops affected a very large proportion of the empire.

The scarcity and want in some places displayed itself in the worst forms, and the writer recollects the rebuke and mortification he suffered when to one peasant woman, complaining of want of food, he pointed to some cement out in the yard, and asked her why she did not use it for bread.

"We've done it, your honor," she replied, simply. "We've mixed it with the flour we had, but now we haven't any more to mix it with, and we can't eat plain stones."

This year is threatening to be even a worse period than that of 1880.

The price of bread has been steadily rising ever since last May, and no wonder that the coming winter stares, dark and gaunt, in the face of many Russians.

That the authorities should exercise their utmost energy in averting starvation from the masses is but natural and laudatory. On similar occasions before the Russian government was not wanting in adopting some measures of relief.

They opened extensive public works, they invited public subscriptions, they projected plans for the construction of railways, highways, drainage and sewerage, and though most of these projects were never realized, still the government displayed great anxiety in their projects for mitigating the public distress.

So it is not the fact that the Russian imperial government interferes so energetically in the present serious crisis whichmakes their motive doubtful, but it is the form in which the official intervention comes that makes it susceptible of other interpretations than the mere anxiety for the welfare of the masses.

Firstly, the prospects of the country at large are not so gloomy.

The crops in Courland, Poland and Finland are exceptionally good, and the system of fairs, which embraces the whole length and breadth of Russia, makes even the individual supply of grain comparatively easy.

Secondly, the imperial prohibition would have been superfluous under any circumstances, and in this particular instance must be accounted for as an act of supererogation.

The 53 per cent. of the whole arable land of Russia is distributed into peasant holdings, the crops of which are sown, raised, cultivated and sold by the peasant himself.

The largest grain merchants and exporters employ a swarm of middlemen who go about the market places and the villages purchasing small quantities of various grains from the individual peasants.

If the peasant has nothing to sell the middleman has nothing to buy, and if the peasant can get a better price for it in the nearest fair he would rather sell to those who want it for home purposes and not for exportation.

It is true that the army, consisting of more than a million men, is fed on rye bread, but the commissariat generally have their contracts completed a year or two in advance, so that no danger could be apprehended in that quarter.

The fact of the matter is, reviewing the situation from many standpoints, one gradually begins to suspect the true nature of the Emperor's wishes in issuing that arbitrary ukase.

The present Emperor, notoriously, goes in for displaying his symathy and affection for the peasants.

Whether it is sincere or affected has been disputed, but not decided, by the contesting parties—the Revolutionists and the Imperialists.

It is certain, however, that the czar has little to fear for the institutions of the country as long as the peasantry and the army remain faithful to the existing regime.

But want, hunger and distress have worked greater havoc with existing forms of government than the most convincing arguments of the propagandists.

The masses change their opinions with the first shifting of the wind, and if that wind blows misfortune, starvation and misery, the powers that be are generally the first sufferers by it.

Apart from this order being an excellently adapted internal policy, it will undoubtedly prove a most searching test of the supply capacity of central Europe, on the outcome of which may depend a more energetic and active policy than Russia has been wont to carry out within the last ten or a dozen years.

Whatever the calculations are which dictate Russia's home or foreign policy, the Emperor's action could not have been inspired by the serious economic aspect of the country, as the remedy required could certainly not be effected by this singular and startling expedient.

AFRAID TO GO ON RECORD

But Ready to Take What Credit May Accrue.

Washington, Aug. 22.—A number of leading members of the Association for the Advancement of Science have been interviewed on the experiments of Col. Dyrenforth with balloons for inducing rainfall and a majority of those interviewed were disposed to regard the experiments in the light of what may be considered "blind experimentation" which might result successfully or not.

All favored experimentations in this field although some thought that more definite scientific results might be had should a time be selected when the indications were for dry weather. The question was also raised as to whether the cost of the possible artificial precipitation may not be greater than the value of the results. Those interviewed regard the subject as an interesting one and look forward to future results with much interest.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

Dun's Review for the Past Week.

The General Business of the Country Is in Good Shape, with Prospects of Improvement.

New York, August 22.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

During the past week attention has been absorbed by great excitement in grain. Russian orders prohibiting exports of rye were taken as official confirmation of the worst reports regarding the harvest in that country.

The price here was suddenly advanced so far as to stop exports; and then rapidly receded, closing at $1.14 1-2, or 9 1-2c above last week's quotation.

There is little room to doubt that foreign demand will be greater than ever if prices here are not so advanced as to check it. It is in the highest degree important that the golden opportunity should not be lost through such a rise in prices as would curtail foreign consumption.

The general business of the country does well, with gradual improvement in nearly all branches, based on actual increase of demand from farming states.

It may be doubted whether there has ever been a more cautious and conservative feeling prevalent, at the time when the prospect of large trade was bright, and in scarcely any branch is there seen a disposition to venture on large speculative purchases. Stocks of goods carried over have been large for years, and dealers are admonished by failures, and there is so general a disposition to purchase only what it is certain consumers will require, that many trades appear hesitating and almost dull.

Yet the volume of business is probably as large as ever before at mid-summer. Collections are not generally good.

It is well also that other speculative markets except in grain there is little excitement; while corn advanced 6 1-2 cents, oats declined 7 and cotton, with prospects of a large crop, declined a sixteenth, coffee 15 cents per 100 pounds, and petroleum 3 cents, while pork also fell 50 cents per barrel, with lard a shade stronger.

It is a surprising fact that the great iron industry does not yet meet the setback which the enormous production threatens. Though the movement of rails is unusually small while iron is pouring out of the furnaces at the rate of 169,576 tons August 1, against 164,793 last year, prices do not fall for pig or finished products, nor do stocks appear to increase.

The production of domestic iron alone is at the rate of 312 pounds for every inhabitant of the country, far in excess of consumption of all iron, domestic and foreign, until last year, and is is rightfully inferred that the demand for other iron than rails must be unprecedented. Some increase is seen for bar, and structural mills are fairly welll employed. The coal movement is also large.

The market for wool continues active, Boston sales reaching 4,298,000 pounds for the week, and the shipments being very large from Chicago, though the trade here is quiet for domestic, but better for foreign wool.

At Boston business is not very active, but the outlook is held encouraging. At Philadelphia complaints of collections continue, and the grocery trade is dull, while no change appears in paints, oils and glass, but for iron there is more inquiry.

At Clevelanl no change appears, and money is in strong demand, and at Cincinnati manufacturers are quite busy, while at Detroit business is good for the season.

At Chicago dry goods sales fall short for the week, though larger than last year for the year thus far, and sales of clothing and shoes are large, while receipts of wheat exceed last year's fourfold and of rye nine-fold, with an increase of about a third in dressed beef, lard, hides and wool.

At St. Louis, largely increased orders are seen in nearly all lines, and at Kansas City trade grows more active. At St. Paul and Minneapolis an excellent harvest makes trade prospects good, and similar reports come from other northern points.

At the south business is still dull; money is tight at many southern points and collections somewhat slow. The stock market has decidedly improved in tone, but there is no sign of speculative madness, and while prices are higher sales are not large.

The money market has continued undisturbed, notwithstanding a large movement to the interior for grain, and apprehensions of the future do not embarrass legitimate business, but put a wholesome check upon speculative excitement. The treasury has put out $1,700,000 more than it has taken in during the week, and the failure to obtain for extension a large part of the 4 1-2 per cent. bonds seems likely to oblige the treasury to disburse large sums for the remaining bonds September 1. Money is in brisk demand at northwestern points, but easy for legitimate business at Chicago.

The business failures during the last seven days number 216, as compared with a total of 227 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 192.

MUTINY ON SHIPBOARD.

Captain Bakker Master of the Situation.

The Men Refused to Work, and the Captain Killed the Leader—Order Restored.

New York, Aug. 22.—Capt. Bakker, of the steamship Obdam, of the Netherlands line, which arrived here this morning from Rotterdam, reports that on the last eastern trip of the Obdam the firemen and the coal passers refused to work, drove the chief engineer on deck, and threatened to indulge in general violence.

The fires died out and the steamer drifted about in the face of an approaching storm. Capt. Bakker demanded that the men return to work. In reply they threatened to kill him and every one on board.

The ring leader, Peter Duzen, approached Capt. Bakker threateningly, followed by the rest of the mutineers.

The captain pulled out a revolver and shot Duzen through the body. Duzen died two hours later. The mutineers retreated to their quarters and still refused to work but were finally compelled to do so at the point of pistols.

TO BE NATIONAL TROOPS.

A Sensational Move Made in Military Circles.

Secretary of War to Command the State Guards.

The Question Is Being Discussed and Regular Army Officers Are Enthusiastic Over the Plan.

St. Louis, August 22.—A movement has been set on foot to put the militia of the states under national pay and supervision. It was started by officers of the regular army at Camp Wickham, Mo., the other day, and circulars and personal letters concerning it are now flying thick and fast about the country.

It is the most radical plan to change the condition of the militia of the country that has risen since the war.

A day or two before the tents at camp Wickham were struck, Col. Milton Moore called together all the soldiers who were in camp, and said that two officers of the army wished to address them upon a subject of prime importance to the militia.

The officers were Lieut. Robert K. Evans, of the 12th infantry, and Lieut. Joseph B. Batchellor, of the 24th infantry.

Lieut. Evans is stationed at Fort Leavenworth and had come to camp Wickham with the regular army detail assigned to assist in the camp instruction. Lieut. Batchellor is on temporary duty at Fort Leavenworth, and had come to camp Wickham with his friend, Lieut. Evans.

The two soldiers broached their proposition with great enthusiasm, first by saying that having carefully made a comparison of the standing army of the United States with those of other countries, they had concluded that something must be done to dignify the military forces of the country.

A constitution of the "association of the national guard of the United States" was then produced. The main objects of the association were declared to be: "To place the national guard of the various states under the control of the secretary of war and to receive financial aid from congress; to secure uniformity in equipment and training and to be prepared at all times to be in readiness to answer a call from congress for national defence."

Adjutant-General Wickham, of Missouri national guard, believes the scheme a feasible one—and that view of the proposed change in the national guard affairs is held by many military men in high standing, both in this state and at Washington.

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of all diseases, and very few persons are entirely free from it.

PATRIARCHS MILITANT

Still Having a High Old Time at Presque Isle.

Yesterday's Drills, Dress Parade and Receptions.

The Kickapoos Do a Ghost Dance and Perform Numerous Wonderful Cures—Notes About the Camp.

"What do the Patriarchs Militant and what do you yourself think of your first encampment?" inquired a Bee of General Whitaker, commander of the department of Ohio, this morning.

"I am quite sure we are all well pleased with the result of the encampment thus far," was the answer. "As you know this was an experiment with us, and on the results rests the question of whether or not they would be a permanent institution. I think I can safely say that this encampment has been successful enough to insure their continuance. Of course we have made mistakes, but we can do better next time. We are sure of one thing, we have had a royal good time and cannot say too much in thanks to Toledo and Toledoans. They have done everything in their power to make our stay a pleasant one."

There was so much fun and so little sleep in the camp last night that the company streets had a deserted appearance all morning on account of the men trying to catch up on their slumbers.

This afternoon, however, the camp is lively enough. The prize drills are being held and there is strong competition.

The dress parade will come off this evening at 6:30 o'clock. Immediately afterward the distribution of prizes will take place. No one, not even the commander, knows where the prizes will fall. The judges have kept their decisions closely guarded. Cantons competing for prizes in yesterday's parade are expected to appear in the dress parad this evening. Those not doing so will not be considered.

This evening there will be a general exodus to the city. Many will attend the Daughters of Rebekah meeting at Odd Fellows' temple at 8:30 o'clock to witness the exemplification of the degree of Rebekah by Aurora lodge No. 3.

THE BIG DAY

At Camp Whitaker—The Bee's Findings.

Yesterday was the big day at Camp Whitaker, and immense crowds visited the camp all day long. Special excursions were run on all the railroads, and hundreds besides the Odd Fellows embraced this opportunity to visit Toledo and Presque Isle.

After the parade was over the chevaliers returned to the island and dinner immediately followed. The meal had scarcely been finished when the call sounded for competitive drills, and the crowd rushed to the big parade ground. It is estimated that about 4,000 people witnessed the maneuvers of the cantons and officers. Captain Roulet, Captain Weier and Lieutenant Tanner, the judges, were first on the field and wore their National Guard uniforms.

Canton Frank, of Germantown, were first escorted to the parade ground by the band. The canton presented a splendid appearance, with 24 file chevaliers and three officers, Captain Rott in command, and their appearance was a signal for hearty applause from the spectators. Their movements afterwards also brought forth frequent applause.

The drill of this canton was executed in an excellent manner, their marches and wheels being especially fine. The drill occupied 30 minutes and the schedule carried out numbered 40 movements.

GEN. WHITAKER CAPTURED BY INDIANS.

Immediately after the close of Canton Frank's drill, Canton Ottawa, of Port Clinton, were escorted to the parade ground for drill. This canton numbered 18 file chevaliers and three officers. Their drilling was excellent, but several of the marching movements were irregular and the drill was not up to the work of the Germantown canton. This canton, however, is young and has been drilling but a short time, considering which, they held themselves very well and received considerable merited applause.

This concluded the canton drilling for the day and the contest will be concluded to-day. The prizes will be awarded at dress parade this evening.

The line officers' drill came next and excited as much interest as the canton drills. In this contest there were five entries, as follows: Ensign A. G. Wolrath, Grand Canton Ohio, of Columbus; Capt. M. B. Evers, jr., Canton Van Wert; Capt. A. Britt, Canton Earl, No. 16, Dayton; Ensign E. Christ, of Canton No. 15, and Capt. M. A. Wonnell, Canton Ottawa, Port Clinton. These five officers were formed in front of the judges and the commands were given them in rapid succession. Capt. Wonnell was the first to leave the line on account of a mistake, and he was soon followed by Capt. Britt, Ensign Christ and Capt. Evers, in the order named, leaving the victory to Ensign Walrath, with Capt. Evers second. The drill was over in less than ten minutes. After the winners had been congratulated by a large number of their friends Gen. Whitaker presented the prizes, $20 in gold to the first, and $10 to the second.

The mounted officers' drill followed and was even shorter than the other. The officers did not drill mounted, as the title might signify, but executed the sword manual and foot movements. The entries in this contest were Major F. W. Weglage, assistant adjutant general, of Dayton; Major J. L. Lowery, of Van Wert; Major R. S. Fulton, assistant quartermaster general, Germantown; and Major E. B. Bliss, Canton Ohio, Columbus. The last named officer was ruled out on the first movement. Major Fulton followed almost immediately, leaving the contest between Major Weglage and Major Lowery. Their drilling was spirited, but both erred on one movement and thus continued together for a minute, when Major Lowery was dropped out on parade rest. This left the victory to Major Weglage, with Major Lowery second.

There was much enthusiasm over this drill, and after the prizes were awarded the winners were escorted back to quarters by a large number of chevaliers from different cantons with the band in front, playing Annie Laurie.

Thus the drills for the day were concluded, and the chevaliers returned to quarters to prepare for dress parade, which followed immediately.

This parade was similar to those of previous evenings except that it worked smoother and the brigade showed the good effect of practice.

DELIGHTFUL EVENING.

Social Pleasures at the Camp After Supper.

Although the officers and chevaliers had worked hard all day, with parade in the morning, drills in the afternoon and dress parade, yet they would not rest, and after supper the whole evening was one round of social enjoyment and the visitors to camp were royally entertained.

At 8 o'clock about a dozen members of the press, with their ladies, were tendered an informal reception by the officers at their headquarters. Light refreshments were served and a feeling of goodfellowship prevailed. Capt. Van Loo acted as master of ceremonies, and made a few pleasant remarks appropriate to the occasion. Gen. Whitaker also expressed the good feeling existing between the order and the press, and thanked the papers for their treatment of the encampment, which, for his part, he considered a grand success, much of which was due to the Toledo people.

Messrs. E. J. Tippett and S. W. Bolles responded on behalf of the press, thanked the officers for their kind treatment of the newspaper representatives who visited the camp, and wished the Patriarchs Militant God speed.

During the reception the band discoursed sweet music, that added much to the pleasure of the occasion.

At the conclusion of this affair the officers and their guests, with the band at the head, visited the headquarters of the general committee where Grand Canton Lucas were holding a reception for all the visitors. The tent was crowded for two hours by guests coming and going, and all left the tent happy. Grand Canton Lucas proved themselves princes in the way of entertainers and none of the visitors were overlooked. Light refreshments, cigars and punch were served and this affair will be remembered as one of the events of the camp.

A NIGHT AT CAMP.

What Is Going On After the Visitors Leave.

Do the boys enjoy themselves at camp, when the shades of night have fallen?

To say that the night is one continual round of innocent amusement and hilarity would not half express it.

Last evening about 10 o'clock the Metropolitan band was called out and, heading a detachment of officers, chevaliers, Daughters of Rebekah and friends, marched through the different streets of the camp to the tune of "Coming through the rye." Several members of Canton Lucas, who are also members of the Ohio Yacht club, conducted the procession to the club house, where a very informal reception was held.

During the serving of refreshments several toasts were offered, after which the delegation was conducted back to camp and disbanded.

A fine concert was next given, at the quarters of the Toledo cantons, by a string orchestra of picked musicians, and some of the campers enjoyed a stag waltz.

Whiz, zip, bang goes a sky rocket, and the night is rendered hideous by the yells in the neighborhood of Canton Frank, of Germantown.

"Whoop-whoop-whoop, ki-ki, ka-ka-ca-poo," and the great medicine men, Lon Bechtel and Jos. Endress, followed by squaw John Shaffer, braves White Feather and Bright Eyes, with Mud Lick in the rear, issued from the medicine tent and the show began.

ATTACK BY THE SANDUSKY MULE BRIGADE.

In the midst of fire works and plenty of red fire, a regular ghost dance was given by the Indians, who with the exception of scarcity of over-clothing were decked out in true Indian style.

The great medicine man made his little speech to the large crowd of ladies and gentlemen, assembled around the campfire, praising the virtues his medicine, and inviting all those suffering from any aches, pains or bruises to step to the front and he would cure them all, free of charge.

The tin whistle, horn and pan concert given by the Indians helped to swell the crowd, and a great many aches and pains were instantly cured.

Among some of the timid ones who had to be forced (?) to take the medicine were General Whitaker, Col. Reeves and Captain Groby. General Whitaker gave the medicine men a good chase down one of the streets, before he could be induced to give testimonial.

One of the features of the show was given to illustrate the wonderful powers of the medicine. By an application of the remedy to the upper jaw the medicine man was able to catch, with his mouth, a bullet fired from a gun. A Bee was in the crowd and suffered untold agonies, caused by a bad case of newsralgia, brought on by an overdose of pi. By the application of a single dose of the wonderful cure-all he was pronounced well and went on his way rejoicing.

Quite a number of the ladies were witnesses to the great Indian show, but their modesty withheld them from receiving any of the benefits derived from a single dose of the medicine. At the close of the sale of medicine a final dance and display of fireworks was given, and the Kick-a-poos disbanded.

A midnight lunch and serenade was given at the "little shoe shop" tent of Capt. Schuffold, of Grand Canton Lucas, No. 15. The bone brigade of Dayton gave a number of serenades, and the band indulged in a cat and dog concert that called forth an encore from the surrounding barnyards.

It was long after 2 o'clock in the morning before camp had quieted down, and those who could indulged in a short sleep, only to be awakened again by the booming of the cannon at 5 o'clock, and in a short time the camp was preparing for to-day's program.

Ex-Councilman George Kapp and Councilman Phil Hassenzahl say that they were "way in it" yesterday.

To-day is pleasure day, and the island is pretty much deserted. Most of the campers are in the city seeing the sights.

Officers prefer to give rather than receive command, judging from the number that participated in the officers' dril.

Excursion rates prevail on the railroads to-morrow, which will have the effect of largely augmenting the crowds at Presque Isle.

A wreck on the Hocking Valley yesterday morning prevented a large delegation from Fostoria putting in an appearance.

The Germantown boys came for a good time and they are having it, though a more gentlemanly set of fellows do not exist.

The encampment has been a success, and there is no doubt but what the affairs will be of annual occurrence hereafter.

O. S. White and Chas. Ross, of Bowling Green, were kept busy yesterday, treating their many lady admirers to peanuts.

The mon is shining its brightest on the boys, though it was not expected she would show her face after that ghost dance.

Geo. Harriet, who holds the championship of England among the wheelmen, was making himself acquainted at camp last night.

The praises of the visitors for the camp still increase, and the first state encampment of the Ohio brigade will always be remembered.

Canton Perry, of Sandusky, boasts of a great mule brigade, and the word has gone forth that they will be out in full force to-night.

The young ladies' moonlight drill is one of the features of the after-dark entertainments which attracts the boys to their headquarters.

Chevalier Adam Frank, of Germantown, marched with the boys in the parade and participated in the prize drill, notwithstanding hs age.

A great many visitors are expected tomorrow from out of the city. An immense excursion will come up from Columbus and points along the line.

Dick Webster and Joe Gallagher, the two fat men of the Van Wert canton, furnished rations for mosquitos, while the other boys snoozed in perfect comfort.

Many of the visiting Odd Fellows, who are also Knights of Pythias, made a tour of the magnificent building owned by the latter order, and expressed their praises without stent.

There are a number of amateur photographers n camp and of course, one is from Germantown. Harry Stutson is taking home some fine views of the camp and of Presque Isle.

Little Bright Eyes came near being lost during the Indian celebration, but it was found that he had gone to look for the snake, which had escaped. This reptile is now one of the features of the tribe.

Gen. Whtaker could not be improved on as a commander, and in the camp he is one of the most genial of men. Right man in the right place expresses the general opinion held of him by the rank and file.

The Gendron Iron Wheel company with 15 men on wheels, under command of Mr. Vogle, spent the early part of last evening with Canton Grand Lucas, and were well pleased with the hospitality extended.

There will be devotional exercises tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Presque Isle opera house, Brigade Chaplain Rev. Geo. S. J. Brown, of Bowling Green, officiating. All Toledo pastors are invited to be present.

The Bee's illustration of the Germantown ghost dance created a sensation in camp last evening, and the newsboys were nearly mobbed in the rush for papers, which resulted in an immense sale of Bees to the exclusion of all others.

President Mrs. Allie Shuler, Mrs. Vanda L. Frank, P. V. G. Grand Lodge, D. of R., Miss Etta Harkrider, Germantown Press correspondent, and Miss Schaffer, make it very pleasant for visitors to the ladies' quarters.

Both of the island boats handled the large crowds yesterday without an accident. The crowds at the dock were very orderly but large, and it required considerable tact to keep them from breaking through the gates when the evening boats arrived.

Canton Frank, No. 55, of Germantown, just before taking the field for dress parade, yesterday, discovered one of their chevaliers deserting. The canton was drawn up in line in front of the deserting member, and he was fined a case of Sagawa, every member voting aye to the motion.

The band and several of the cantons, especially those who participated in the prize drill, put in a good day's work yesterday. There was drill in the morning, then the big parade in the city, competitive drill in the afternoon and dress parade. Besides this the band was kept busy every minute with concerts and serenades far into the night.

The Germantown braves prepared supper in true Indian style last evening. A kettle was suspended from the regulation crane, cooking by a straw fire, was the supper, consisting of a well-fed garter snake, a few succulent toad-stools, and some most excellent crab-apples. Chief Cook Hide-in-the-Grass Bechtolt and his assistant, Man-with-face-like-the-Sun Endress officiated.

Fireworks Explosion.

A brief display of fireworks was made by the Presque Isle company last evening, but it came to a sudden end by an unexpected simultaneous explosion of the entire stock on hand. The fireworks, consisting of rockets, Roman candles, wheels and bombs, were being displayed from a platform in the rear of the opera house and the reserve stock was lying on the floor of this platform. The flying sparks ignited the fireworks on the platform, and in an instant there was a big display that was too dangerous to be amusing. Rockets and bombs flew in every direction and into the crowd, but fortunately no one was hurt.

TO DREDGE THE RIVER.

Action by the Produce Exchange on the Jefferson Street Obstruction.

At the forenoon session of the Produce Exchange, the following resolution relative to the obstruction in the river at the foot of Jefferson street was adopted:

This exchange is informed that great impediments to navigation exist in our harbor off the foot of Jefferson and below, by which loaded vessels are detained and obliged to undergo the expense of lighterage before reaching their docks.

That this hindrance to navigation in our harbor seems the more aggravated and unworthy of our city, in the light of all that the government has performed in our bay for the admission of vessels into the Bay; Therefore be it resolved, That the city council be and is hereby respectfully requested to take measures for the removal of the shoals and other obstructions at the earliest possible moment, and that our harbor committee be requested to present this preamble and resolution at the next meeting of that body.

SOME SPICY CURRENT TOPICS

Of Local and Neighborhood Interest.

Notes and Comments on Incidents Occurring Daily—Prepared for Readers Who are Hustled for Time.

Reunion of the 130th O. V. I.

The One Hundred and Thirtieth regiment O. V. I., will hold a reunion at Sylvania on August 26. A great time is anticipated by the old survivors of this gallant regiment.

Was in a Collision.

Andrew C. Patterson instituted proceedings in common pleas court to-day against the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo Railway company to recover $1,000 damages for injuries sustained in a collision on that road at Fostoria, January 6.

The Summit Street Pavement.

The cost of paving Summit street, from Elm street to the old city line, with asphalt has been figured up. The round numbers the pavement with interest, etc., will cost $6.59 per foot. If paid in cash this can be reduced to $5.28 per foot. It is a fine improvement.

Recommended Parole.

Humane Agent France and Superintendent Kirkby this morning forwarded to the workhouse directors a letter recommending the parole of Thomas Schail, sent up some time ago for neglecting his family. This step was taken on Schail's faithful promise to do better in the future.

Sold by the Sheriff.

The sheriff this morning made the following sales:

South half of lot 188, Woodruff's addition, to Michael Jacobson and Lohman Gillerd, for $900.

Lot 100, Hill's addition, to Anna Kiln, $1,560.

The Persecution of the Jews.

The subject, "Persecution of the Jews in Russia," will be discussed at a meeting called for that purpose Wednesday evening at the First Baptist church on Huron street, near Cherry. Many prominent speakers have signified their willingness to take part, and a great many in sympathy with the movement will attend the meeting.

EDWARD N. KRAUS,
Chairman Committee.

Exposition Notes.

The following local entries were made to-day: Hassenzahl, crockery and glassware; Taylor & Lezenby, confectionary; Worts, Kirk & Bigelow, same; Toledo Rubber company, rubber goods; W. E. Cawood, jewelry; McKecknie & Oswald, photographs; Van Loo & Trost, same; C. L. Lewis, same.

Too Much Speed Charged.

Suit was entered in common pleas court to-day by Charles Edwards, administrator of the estate of George Copeland, deceased, against the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad company to recover $10,000 damages.

The petition alleges that George Copeland was run over and killed within the city limits by a passenger train owned and controlled by the defendants, which was running at a greater rate of speed than allowed by law.

Sunday School Lawn Fete.

Next Sunday evening the grove at the corner of Buckeye and Ontario streets will be the scene of a happy gathering, on the occasion of the mammoth Sunday school lawn fete. Arrangements have been made for a grand time. Swings, fish ponds and refreshments, besides a literary and musical program, are among the attractions. The proceeds will go to the erection of a mission Sabbath school on the grounds. The object is worthy, and liberal patronage should be bestowed.

An Emigrant Commissioner.

Mr. T. C. Ryan, of Columbus, is rusticating about Toledo at present under appointment as emigrant agent. This office was created by the last congress, the secretary of the treasury being authorized to appoint as many as necessary to carry out the law. It is a very nice berth, but why a commissioner should be located in Toledo, when not not an emigrant drops in once in ten years, is a query often put. The snap is a good one, and no one can enjoy it better than Ryan.

Must Draw the Line Somewhere.

A meeting of the M. E. conference entertainment committee was held last evening at St. Paul's church. Various matters connected with the coming meeting were discussed. At this session the lay conference assembles for the choice of two delegates to the grand conference, but as these are not all settled for some weeks yet, it is difficult to provide for their case. A motion was adopted by the committee notifying the presiding elders of the six districts that entertainment will only be arranged for such delegates notice of whose coming is filed at least ten days before September 23.

Too Young For The Farm.

Seated in the humane office this morning was a bit of a lad not nine years old, but for his size and age he possessed more cussedness to the square inch than any score of boys in town. He has a record as a bad boy that would be a fortune to Mark Twain.

His name is Frank Carlock and his parents live at Manhattan though the boy himself is seldom ever found there. The boy's career began about six months ago when his mother was arrested and fined $10 and costs for beating him. He declared then that he would not live at home and he has been keeping his word, as the police have been picking him up at regular intervals at all hours of the night wandering about in the most remote parts of the city. When his father would miss him, he would wait until morning and go to the police station, where the lad would invariably be found. He has been picked up three times this week, and Humane Agent France will now take steps to send him to the industrial farm at Lancaster.

I. O. G. T. Notes.

The Milton Center, Bowling Green, Pemberville, Beacon Light, of Toledo, Six Points and Willing Workers of Toledo lodges went to Mungen Thursday evening and gave a very choice entertainment for the benefit of Mungen lodge. All who attended went home feeling that to be known as a Good Templar was an honor. The following is the program as rendered:

Opening song, Mungen lodge.
Recitation, E E Dancer, Milton Center.
Recitation, Stella Kenedy, Bowling Green.

Everything was good, and personal mention could not be made of one without doing injustice to the rest.

Mrs. J. C. Stone will Lecture in Mungen two nights, August 29 and 30. Mrs. Stone is an able speaker and should be greeted with packed houses.

Society Event at North Toledo.

One of the most pleasant society events of the month, was a surprise given to one of the oldest and most respected citizens, Mr. C. M. Keith. On Tuesday evening about fifty of his most intimate friends, who having learned this to be his seventy-fourth birthday anniversary, thought the occasion merited the taking possession of his residence on Summit avenue ready to welcome him upon his return from the I. O. G. T. lodge in which he is a prominent worker. Although not having anticipated being taken by such a storm, Mr. Keith, with his usual dignified manner, soon made all feel happy with him.

Mr. J. G. Norton, in a neat spicy speech in behalf of the guests, presented the judge, as he is titled, having served in that capacity for several terms in Fulton county, with an elegant chair. After replying with a few well chosen words of thanks mine host then led the way to a sumptuous repast served by Mrs. Keith and daughters, where many of the guests responded to a call for "speeches." All who participated in this joyous occasion pronounced it to be "good to be there." With many good wishes the party dispersed at an early hour.

A FERTILE SUGGESTION.

Coming from the Late M. C. Warn, Who Has Arranged Matters to Soon Return to Toledo.

A Bee has learned one of the plans proposed by Mr. M. C. Warn for settling his account with Ideal Council of the National Union, and for fertility it is equal to anything of modern thought. Mr. Warn writes without date or place, and his letter was handed to the trustees of the council by his friends in his city. The plan proposed by Mr. Warn was to assess each member of Ideal Council $1 each, and in this way nearly enough would be realized to settle his deficiency. It is, of course, unnecessary to say the trustees did not take to this suggestion, and the matter has been left with them for a settlement, which it is likely will be reached in some amicable way.

WORKMEN WERE HONORABLE

And Would Not Take the Place of Strikers.

Another Scene in the Republican Tin-Plate Farce Just Now on the Boards.

St. Louis, Aug. 22.—Eleven skilled sheet iron and tin plate rollers who came here from Philadelphia to take the place of strikers in the St. Louis Stamping company's mills have returned home because the mill owners misrepresented facts.

They say that they were informed that their services were needed to start up a new mill, while on their arrival they discovered they were to take strikers' places.

Stabbed in a Row.

Boston, Aug. 22.—Wm. S. McGregor, of North Woburn, and four men whose names are at present unknown, became involved in a dispute near Parks' hotel, on Bosworth street, during which McGregor was stabbed, perhaps fatally, by one of the men. McGregor was removed to the hospital. His condition is critical. The police claim to know the man who did the stabbing and are looking for him.

Went Through a Wagon.

Peterson, N. J., Aug. 22.—The Erie conductor's special excursion train on its return from Shohola Glen last night plowed through a delivery wagon at Fair street crossing in this city, instantly killing Peter Flanagan, one of the occupants, and seriously injuring another named John Malone.

THE SWEET STUFF.

Proposition to Form a Big Corporation

To Start a Sugar Manufacturing Plant in Toledo—Are We In It?

Another gigantic enterprise is within the grasp of Toledo if the slightest effort is made to secure it.

Mr. A. K. Detwiler this morning received a communication from a corporation in Massachusetts seeking to establish an immense sugar manufacturing plant in this city.

The letter states that Toledo is a most desirable point for the location of such an industry, for the reason that it is situated in about the center of one of the best sugar beet producing belts in the country. This, in connection with the splendid shipping facilities, both rail and water, places Toledo in high favor in the consideration of such a project.

The company proposes that a local stock company be formed with a capital stock of $300,000. This done, they will furnish all necessary machinery to completely equip a plant, furnish all skilled labor, and supply seed to beet growers and take stock in the concern in payment.

This seed will be given to farmers and gardeners who will contract to furnish so many acres of beets per year.

The letter further stated that the company would exhibit samples of the beet seed, the beets produced therefrom, and sugar manufactured and the machinery that made it, at the state fair at Columbus this fall.

They are ready to discuss the matter, and will send a representative to the city if the citizens manifest any interest in the project.

This is an opportunity to add another enterprise to Toledo's numerous manufacturing interests, and it should be taken advantage of without delay.

ONE CENT A MILE

To Cincinnati and Return, August 29th, via C., H. & D., to see the "Last Days of Pompeii."

The annual spectacle given by the Order of Cincinnatus will this year be the "Last Days of Pompeii," one of Pain's masterpieces which will be produced with all the perfection of his Manhattan Beach display. On August 29, the C. H. & D. will run an excursion from Toledo and points north of Dayton to Cincinnati and return at the rate of one cent per mile. The tickets will be good returning August 30.

REYNOLDS' BOATS

Start with Cargoes from Toledo and New Orleans.

Two Hundred Thousand Bushels of Grain from This Port

To London and Liverpool Shipped To-Day—Interesting Interview With Col. S. C. Reynolds on His New Lines.

"Yes, sir, both lines of boats are in operation to-day,"

Col. S. C. Reynolds was the speaker, and it was in reply to a query of a Bee that he spoke.

"To-day Reynolds Bros. made arrangements to ship direct from Toledo to Liverpool and London 200,000 bushels of wheat."

The announcement means great things for this port. It means the opening of direct water communication between Toledo and the greatest seaport in the world.

"When will the grain leave this port?" Col. Reynolds was asked.

"The grain is being loaded, and will leave between now and Monday."

"Do the boats belong to the company or are they chartered."

"The grain goes through the canal by way of Montreal in chartered boats. We will have our own boats running next season."

Have you seen this dispatch regarding the New Orleans line?" and the reporter handed Mr. Reynolds the following:

> Galveston, Tex., Aug. 22.—The Southern Pacific, better known as the Reynold-Morgan line of steamers, which have been plying between this port and New York for many years during the cotton season, have been withdrawn and will hereafter ply between New York and New Orleans, where the Southern Pacific railway system will hereafter concentrate their traffic business.
>
> The withdrawal of these steamers will be a serious loss to this city, as this was made the distributing point of much of the freight destined for Colorado, New Mexico, old Mexico and California, which will now pass through New Orleans, while the return cargoes of cotton which these steamers received here will be deflected and shipped from New Orleans.

"Yes, that is our line," Col. Reynolds replied handing the dispatch back to the reporter.

By next season the proposed line of steamers will be running direct from Toledo to Liverpool.

The Canadian steamer John Gaskins and Consorts, Glengarry and Glenora are loading grain for Kingston to day. The grain will be transferred to ocean steamers at Montreal.

We can stand all the racket and worry from now till next December over the question of who will be the next speaker of the house buoyed up by the assurance that whoever it may be it will not be Thomas Bracket Reed of the Kittery navy yards.

The Harrisonian organs are chuckling over "Blaine's defeat" at Harrisburg. If any part of the proceedings of the Pennsylvania republican convention is really satisfactory to the second term advocates, then they are easily pleased, and receive microscopically small favors with thankfulness.

If the pulverizing organ on the corner wants the saloons closed on Sunday why does it not insist that the republican mayor shall enforce the law? Mr. Emmick declared, with much bombast, last spring, that he would close them. Why censure Chief O'Dwyer when the mayor claims to be the big boss?

That is a pretty story which comes from New York of how "the little tots, all the way from five to ten," who gather for play on the doorsteps of Mr. Cleveland's Madison avenue home, now closed, have a nick-name for the ex-president, "Mr. Tariff." Even the babes of America have a vague idea of who is the mightiest foe to America's greatest evil.

While Major McKinley to-day dwelt upon the aim of the republican party to keep out the pauper labor of the old world the police at Newton, Mass., were standing guard over the sewers of that town, where Italian laborers had been employed. These laborers are on a strike to be paid their August wages in advance, and threaten to use their stillettos if they cannot have the money. These laborers were imported by padrones, in violation of the alien labor law, a law that has been persistently ignored under this republican administration.

The cotton-growers of the south have not a pleasant financial outlook, notwithstanding the unusual yield of that staple this year. In 1871 the average income from an acre of cotton was $35.42; last year it was only $19.11. From 1880 to 1890 the average price per pound fell from 12 1-2 cents to 9 cents, and 9 cents is all that is offered this year. It is the old story, supply greater than demand. Before the war the acreage planted in cotton in the states in the cotton belt was 8,000,000 acres; last year it was 192,000,000. During the war the cotton mills of Manchester, England, were forced to shut down for lack of the raw cotton as surely as were the cotton mills of Manchester, New Hampshire. Now the cotton grown in Egypt and India is fairly forcing the American cotton, under unfavorable competing conditions, out of the markets of all countries but this. The home market alone remains, and now that it cannot consume the home product of cotton, what is the advice the home market advocates offer the cotton growers? The Washington Post says:

> The fact is there is too much cotton grown. * * * The only way in which the evil can be cured is by reducing production to the limit of the demand. * * * The wise course for the southern farmer to pursue is to restrict his production.

The cotton planter of the south will not, of course, after such advice as this, ask why he can not have a wider market for his staple.

In opening the republican political campaign in Ohio to-day Major McKinley made a statement in which every Ohioan is happy to concur when he said:

"It is fortunate the issues are of that character which will excite no bitterness but are well calculated to invite calm and dispassionate judgment. It is fortunate, too, that the issues are so well defined and clearly marked that no misunderstanding or evasion can arise."

The gentlemen who head the respective tickets have clean and honorable personal records, above suspicion and attack, and the oncoming campaign, devoid of personalities, will be a discussion of vital principles on which the people will record their convictions by their ballots in November. The tariff will of course be the leading issue. The republicans were compelled to nominate McKinley and make a stand upon the line chosen by the democrats. On this subject Major McKinley dilates in his speech, and he defines the proper and only end of a protective tariff to be this:

"Duties must be levied with a view to revenue, and upon those foreign products which yield the greatest revenue and which will not, incidentally or otherwise, favor domestic industry and domestic labor. Its one mission, and one mission only, is that of raising revenue."

Democrats will insist that this is the definition of a revenue tariff, and not of the high protective tariff as exemplified in the present law, which is unnatural, unnecessary and burdensome to the people. Major McKinley says "if protection is a burden to the people, we should find some manifestation of it somewhere." Democrats claim that protection is, as at present provided for, "burdensome to the people," and that "the manifestations of it are everywhere, in the business of the country, in the homes of its people. The ideal picture Major McKinley draws of the general "progress, prosperity and plenty" need not be commented upon. The condition is non-existent. No flowers of rhetoric can cover up the discontent of the people; no oratory can satisfy them that McKinleyed protection is good for them. This is the issue, as Major McKinley feels.

The Rain Machine.

Midland, Tex., August 22—The rain experimenters have not so far made a good test of their ability to produce rain. Monday at 7 p. m. a small cloud appeared and the operators fired four shots of rackarock powder; after each shot some rain fell, but when the firing ceased the rain stopped. All who witnessed the operation were convinced they had caused the sprinkles. Tuesday morning they expected to continue their experiments but a high wind prevented the aeronaut from ascending.

They are still experimenting and will continue until they succeed in making a thorough test.

Janus-Faced Harrison.

I try to be broadly philanthropic in my thoughts about the human race, but cannot help thinking that an American workman has a stronger claim on my sympathy and help than any other workman. [Applause.]—Harrison at Troy.

This is from the railroad attorney who was anxious to volunteer for Pinkerton service in shooting down the wages of Indianapolis strikers.—St. Louis Republic.

Liable to Schnapp.

The situation in Europe is really growing serious. Yesterday the price of schnapps in the German markets went up 8 marks per hectoliter. The German autocracy must beware how it interferes with the necessities of the people. If schnapps goes up much higher something is likely to schnapp.—Chicago Times.

Rough on the President.

Mr. Benjamin Harrison of Indianapolis is distrusted by all intelligent, patriotic and progressive Americans. He has outlived his time and his usefulness. He is incapable of adapting himself to the needs and the aspirations of the present. He stands in the way of the future. And he will be thrust aside.—St. Louis Republic.

Too Shrewd.

McKinley hasn't explained that drop in the price of wool and that rise in the price of woolen clothing since the passage of the bill. These are the things the farmers want to know about, and yet you can't for the life of you, get McKinley to open his mouth about them.—Newark Advocate.

Must Be Pardoned.

"No, it isn't quite correct to say that the battle of Bennington came off a hundred years ago. It was about 114 years ago, to speak exactly. Something must be pardoned to current centennial enthusiasm, however.—Boston Herald.

The Only Reason.

If the prices of any articles upon which the new tariff increases the duty have gone down the new tariff is a rank failure as to these articles. The only reason under heaven for the increase of any duty in the McKinley bill was to increase the price of the articles so taxed.—Fayette Register-Democrat.

An Elephant on His Hands.

Ah, there! Do you not see the hand of Quay, when among 1,204 republican delegates in Pennsylvania the air is full of shouts for Blaine? Mr. Harrison's steerer, Clarkson, must already realize how big an elephant he has upon his hands.—Boston Globe.

You Can Trust Him.

If it is necessary to hold wheat, the farmer knows that he can afford to hold it better than anybody. If it is expedient to market the crop or a goodly portion of it, he is pretty sure to do so.

In short, the American farmer is all right.—N. Y. Telegram.

Far Reaching Deeds.

If the gallant Stark had not won the bloody battle of Bennington, there might never have been a bounty on Vermont maple sugar. The great deeds of immortal heroes are more reaching than they dream of.—Courier-Journal.

A Miraculous Age.

Don't imagine that the age of miracles is past. As long as a tariff law is able to do more than rain and sunshine in making a rich harvest of crops there is still a chance for further manifestations of wonderful freaks and paralyzing exhibitions.—Bucyrus Forum.

Both Admire Base Ball.

Uncle Jerry Rusk and Charlie Foster are the base ball "fans" of the administration. The one will leave the weather, and the other the lonesome little surplus in the treasury, at any time to attend a game.—Kansas City Star.

Beats New York.

While Bennington has raised a monument to the memory of Gen. Stark, New York has not yet erected one to the memory of Gen. Grant. Bennington is a small village; New York is a city about the size of Chicago.—Chicago Herald.

They Lynched Him.

Birmingham, Ala., August 22—The negro who murdered young Parr near Clanton yesterday was captured near Verbena. A crowd took him to the scene of his crime and lynched him. He confessed his crime.

Unamerican.

We notice that Major McKinley has presented Mrs. Taylor, of East Liverpool, a pure white Arabian pony. This is un-American. Where is the broncho, that he is to be rejected in favor of these pauper Arabian horses?—The Massillonian.

Ought to Be Thankful.

Ingalls has abandoned his contemplated trip to the Holy Land. It is in order now for the citizens of Jerusalem to pass resolution of thanks.—Atlanta Journal.

And a Razor With it.

Quay's rabbit's foot came down on the Pennsylvania platform with a noise loud enough to raise the suspicion that the foot was encased in a cowhide boot.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

Still In Business.

The well known firm of Tariff, Trust & Co., is still in business, and preparing harmoniously for a big fall movement against the American pocket.—Lima Times.

Cooked, Tasted and Rejected.

Bill McKinley's goose is cooked. The farmers have barbecued it, have tasted and rejected it, and in November will bury it.—Catholic Knight.

Ought to Wait.

The attack on Gen. Garfield comes rather late. Its authors ought to desist, say for a century or two.—Boston Herald.

A Protection Argument.

The king of Samoa gets only about 75 cents a day for his services. McKinley might use this.—Wheeling Register.

THERE IS NO BLACK-LIST.

Statement Relative to the Canvas for City Gas.

The statement in the Bee yesterday relative to the black-list which, it is claimed, is being prepared by the board of gas trustees seems to have been founded on a misapprehension.

"Residents along streets where pipes are being laid are asked if they will become consumers," said Dr. Jones this morning, "simply that we may know to what residence we may lay service lines from the mains. If a resident says he does not want the city gas it saves us the trouble and expense of putting in service lines to the curbs. It is absolutely necessary that we should have this knowledge."

"What is there in this alleged black-list?"

"Nothing, absolutely nothing. It is just as I told you."

An investigation is being made regarding the alleged ungentlemanly conduct of the canvassers. The matter will probably come before the board and from this source the particulars will be given to the public.

STAND BY PARKS FOSTER.

The Arbitration Committee Make Report on Pipe.

The natural gas trustees meet this afternoon to hear report of the three commissioners, Messrs. Faber, Haughton and Burgess, appointed to examine the pipe being laid by the Parks Foster syndicate.

The gentlemen have examined about five hundred lengths and condemned only eleven, the rest being considered up to the regulation required.

TO SWELTER NEXT WEEK.

Such Are the Predictions of Prof. Foster,

And He Usually Hits the Nail on the Head.

The Rain Experiments Being Made by the Government Discussed on the Eve of Great Discoveries.

Special to the Bee.

St. Joseph, Mo., August 22.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continet from 22d to 26th and the next will be due to leave the Pacific coast about August 27th, cross the Rocky Allegheny valley from 28th to 30th and reach the Atlantic coast about the 31st.

Very hot weather will precede this storm wave and several local storms may be expected. Comparatively the weather will be quiet throughout August preparatory to the great storms to follow. The weather will average hot during the last half of August and the first half of September, after which a decided change may be expected.

I will repeat that all should be prepared for an early and hard winter, especially in all that country drained by the Mississippi river and the western great lakes.

Those who wish to save corn fodder will need to do so early.

Late corn in the northern corn belt will need to be cut before it is mature to save it from an early frost. I expect a killing frost in the northern edges of the corn belt on September 17th or 18th, with a probability that frost will do some damage on the 13th or 14th. Not much rainfall is expected from the storm wave of 27th to 31st but rather an increase of the drouth areas. Local rains will continue to be of the cloud burst nature.

Weather and Science Notes.

Continuing the discussion of the national weather maps I must add that the weather bureau does not recognize the fact that a high and a low barometer, constituting an electric pair, often form within a low barometer or storm center and in failing to recognize this fact, both the forecasts and the maps become deficient. Cloud bursts, water spouts and tornadoes are small low barometers of great force and much lower than the low barometer in which they are formed although they are usually far from the center of the general low barometer.

They cause terrific up-spouts of atmosphere and must be fed by a correspondingly high barometer and downpour of atmosphere which often form within the general low barometer. The weather map artists failing to recognize this important fact draw their isobars and isothems so as to make it appear that chaos reigns when, in reality is the most perfect order.

The Rain Makers.

hope the press will not be so unfair with them as it was with me five or six years ago. The first experiment by the rainmakers in Texas was somewhat favorable to their theories in that the experiment was performed where a drouth has been affecting the country and in a climate that averages only a small rainfall.

But, on the other hand, there were three storm waves due to cross the Rocky-Allegheny valley from August 5th to 13th, their dates had been announced in my letters and southern rates predicted for them.

Mercury passed its greatest disturbing point on the 6th and an increased amount of foggy, cloudy weather had been predicted.

The moon passed its greatest disturbing point on the 9th and the storm center that would be most affected by these disturbances was due to pass east of the Rocky Mountains on the 10th.

The weather maps show that a storm wave had moved from the Pacific coast and its low barometer was in New Mexico, its high in Montana on the 9th, and rains had fallen from Manitobo to southeastern Colorado.

The movement of the storm wave was very favorable to rains in Texas on the 10th, but we cannot say that rains would have fallen without the explosions of dynamite and powder.

The experimenters have a right to choose the most favorable time for their tests and to locate their tests in the path of the moisture from the Gulf of Mexico.

Midland, Texas, is one of the most arid localities in the state, but for several years past they have had a very considerable rainfall.

Under the circumstances a number of successful experiments will be necessary before the public will be convinced that rain can be produced by explosions at an expense which the government can afford to pay.

But rain-making is a matter of great importance to the public and $9,000 is not sufficient to thoroughly test the theory.

Even if the theory does not promise much congress should make a liberal appropriation and have it more thoroughly tested.

The Australian who has been making rain in Ohio is also attracting much attention. It will be observed that he, also, selects for his experiments the days on which the storm waves are due, and this proves him to be a close observer.

If he is correctly understood his scheme is the opposite of the bombardment plan. The latter is by expansion causing a rising atmosphere and a consequent suction drawing the moisture and clouds to a focal point.

The Australian theory appears to be that of condensing the atmosphere by chemicals, thereby causing an indraught and a drawing together of the clouds and moisture by that means.

Both theories are correct, and the only question is as to their practicability.

It is not doubted that under favorable circumstances rain can be produced by either of these processes, but the amount and expense are the great questions.

The theory of the Australian should be given a fair test, and although he has not asked it congress should make a liberal appropriation for testing it.

Nearly one-fourth of the tillable land of the earth is unproductive for want of rain, and the whole human race would be benefited if a means of economically producing rain could be found.

We are on the eve of great discoveries that will vastly benefit all mankind, and governments should be on the alert not only to aid in making these discoveries, but also in securing the benefits to the masses, and preventing corporations from turning these discoveries into means of extortion and oppression.

As a rule the inventors, the men and women who make great discoveries, and the masses do not receive their due portion of benefits, while corporations receive more than is their due.

W. T. FOSTER.

THIS WASN'T PRINTED.

An Interview Not of the Character Desired.

Yesterday a Blade reporter called upon one of the leading republican politicians of the city whose office is in the Produce Exchange. He said:

"Mr. ———, the Blade is making a fight on Chief O'Dwyer, and we would like your opinion."

"I haven't got any opinion on the matter. What are you fighting him for?"

"On general principles, but ostensibly because he wont close the saloons on Sundays."

"Well, in the first place, I don't know if the saloons are open on Sunday. By the way, who is responsible for the maintenance of law and order in Toledo?"

"Chief O'Dwyer."

"Well, then, I have nothing whatever to say against his administration. The city is freer from crime to-day than ever it has been before. If O'Dwyer can keep the city as clear of crime as at present I say he is the right man in the right place."

It is hardly necessary to say that the Blade did not print the interview.

LOCAL LABOR NEWS.

The Early Closing Movement Practically Dead—Meetings Last Evening.

The early closing movement inaugurated by the Clerks' Mutual and Protective union has, it appears, gone a glimmering. The clerks did not receive the support from citizens generally, as was anticipated. A number of stores have reopened, and others will follow suit.

The Linemen's union held an interesting session last evening. An effort is being made to turn out in a body on labor day.

The Woodworking Machine Hands' union met last evening. A communication was read from the Building Trades relative to sending delegates to that body. One or two minor grievances were discussed.

The Glass Cutters' union met in Phoenix hall last evening and decided to attend the labor day parade, as far as possible, in a body.

To-morrow afternoon delegates from the various K. of L. assemblies of the city will meet at Walbridge hall to make arrangements for the excursion to Put-in-Bay on labor day.

Proclamation by the Governor.

Governor Campbell has issued the following:

To the people of the State of Ohio:

The general assembly of the state of Ohio has wisely provided for a legal holiday to be known as Labor day, and has designated the first Monday in September to be so observed.

Therefore, I, James E. Campbell, governor, do hereby call upon the people of Ohio to observe the same, being the seventh day of September, in the full meaning and intent of the law. It is just and proper that the laborer and artisan should have set aside to them a day on which honest toil and industry may be suitably celebrated, and the dignity of labor upheld. The banker, the merchant, manufacturer, and contractor, in fact all who owe their prosperity to the laboring and producing classes, should join in observing this day and perform no labor whatsoever except such as is usually performed on Sunday.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name, and caused to be affixed the great seal of the state of Ohio, this twenty-first day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, and in the one hundred and sixteenth year of the independence of the United States of America.

By the Governor,
JAMES E. CAMPBELL.
DANIEL J. RYAN, Secretary of State.

KILLED ON THE STREET.

A Very Brutal Murder at Ada, Ohio.

Two Men Arrested Charged with the Crime.

George Stakesbury Assaulted by a Jockey and a Showman and His Life Crushed Out.

Lima, O., Aug. 22.—The village of Ada a short distance east of here, was the scene of a brutal murder last midnight.

John South, a Fostoria jockey, and James Stewart, proprietor of a side show at the fair grounds assaulted Geo. Stakesbury, aged 21, the son of a prominent farmer living one mile out of Ada.

South used a stone, crushing Stakesbury's skull.

It is thought they were after his money.

Both were arrested.

South was found hidden in a lot of straw at the race track.

He was taken to Kenton to avoid a lynching party which was quickly organized.

The murder was committed on the main street. The excitement is intense.

THAT OCEAN TRIP

Which Broke the Record—A Couple of Toledoans on Hand.

The BEE has already made mention of the fast trip made by the ocean steamship Teutonic, on which Mr. John B. Ketcham 2d and Mrs. Ketcham arrived from their European trip. In the past two weeks two White Star line steamers have broken the record—the Majestic's time being 5 days, 18 hours, 8 minutes; the Teutonic's, 5 days, 16 hours, 31 minutes. A remarkable feature of the trip is the three fast daily runs of over 500 miles a day, the record of 517 miles for a day being the best ever made. The best previous daily run was 515 miles, made by the City of Paris.

During the trip the Teutonic burned a trifle more than 300 tons of coal a day, and according to her log her screws averaged 75 revolutions a minute, though it is said that during the last three whole days of the trip they averaged 81.

The best undisputed time made previous to the two record breaking voyages of the White Star line twins was that of the City of Paris, which sailed from Roche's Point, Queenstown harbor, to the Sandy Hook lightship in 5 days, 19 hours and 18 minutes, ending August 28, 1889. Following is a comparison of the log records of this trip and those of the Majestic and Teutonic:

	City of Paris.	Majestic.	Teutonic.
First day......	462	470	460
Second day...	493	501	496
Third day....	502	497	505
Fourth day....	506	501	510
Fifth day.....	509	491	517
Sixth day.....	316	317	290
Total.........	2,788	2,777	2,778

During the whole of the trip there was more or less excitement among the passengers relative to the work of the ship, and when the voyage closed and the record was broken, a lively cheer was sent up.

WILL PAY ITS DEBTS.

The American Wheel Company to Survive.

Its Affairs Not in Half so Bad Shape as It Was Generally Suspected.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Receiver N. C. Butler, of the American Wheel company, has filed his bond and begun the work of disentangling the affairs of the corporation.

Several of the stockholders of the company are already in the city and others will be here at a conference to be held at which it is expected some satisfactory plan of sttlement may be arrived at.

Attorney Morris said this morning the creditors of the company would undoubtedly be paid in full. He asserted that an investigation will show the concern to be in a better condition than the first statements indicated. "The total assets on Aug. 1, 1889, he says, are shown by an itemized statement of that date to have been $4,074,353. Of the $1,800,000 liabilities $1,000,000 is in the form of promissory notes and accepted drafts. The rest is in open accounts. Within the past three months the indebtedness has been reduced over $350,000."

The officers say they have already contracts for wheels for delivery during the next season amounting to $1,000,000. Other contracts beyond one year and within three years amount to $900,000. After appointing a receiver each court entered an order allowing the receiver to continue business so that all contracts may be carried out.

THE FIGHT IS ON.

The Sherman-Foraker Forces in Battle Array.

Squire Demands the Railroad Commissionership,

While Fassett Is Booked for Commissioner of Labor—Bonner or Squire, Which?—Party Revolt in Lucas.

The fight is on in Lucas county, and the Sherman-Foraker forces are in battle array.

Yesterday afternoon, at a conference of Toledo Sherman men at which Jake Donaldson, of Columbus, presided, and at which J. M. Brown, David Austin, J. C. Bonner and other Sherman lights were present a somewhat sensational communication was read.

It was in substance that W. I. Squire had demanded in writing from Major McKinley that in the event of his election that he (Squire) be appointed railroad commissioner.

The epistle also brought the equally interesting information that A. D. Fassett had demanded the office of labor commissioner.

The Shermen men accuse Squire and Fassett of sending out to democratic newspapers anti-Sherman literature, and McKinley will be asked to throw both overboard if he would secure Sherman's support.

On the other hand the Foraker men are up in arms. Such men as J. F. Kumler, Clarence Brown and J. Kent Hamilton are leading the revolt against both factions. They cannot and will not under any circumstances rally around the Bonner standard.

"The fact is," said one of them, "Brown (p. m.) runs Bonner and the postmaster is Sherman's strongest ally in this section. We want no Sherman in ours."

"Have you heard of Emmick's tactics," and the gentleman laughed. "No, well he is on both sides of the fence. He was up all day in Waldorf's office and then came over to our meeting in the Produce Exchange and came out strongly in favor of Foraker. He is the slippiest fellow ever I knew, but he is no politician. Do you know what he is going to do now?"

"No; what is it?"

"Well, perhaps I had better say nothing, but everyone knows it. He is going to have Eli Burdo, the sidewalk inspector, fired, and he will appoint a rank outsider. Oh, but it will raise a row."

"Are the Sherman people opposing Griffin?"

"They are, and they are not. They demand that he run for the senatorship instead of the legislature."

"Will he do it?"

"No, of course not. Their aim is to try and kill him in the outside counties. 'A bird in the hand,' you know."

"What do you people—the independents—propose doing?"

"Nothing just now. Foraker must call off Squire and Fassett, or they will hoodoo us. We have been unable to find just how Carl Beckham stands.'

"Is he a candidate for the legislature?"

"Oh, yes. The Sherman men say he is one of them, and if he is he had better withdraw from the race right now."

"Have you heard of Squire's demand?"

"Yes. He don't deny it. He demands the position of railroad commissioner for the services he is renderng."

TWENTY MILLION POUNDS

Of French Gold to Come to Our Shore.

France Will Need Our Wheat and Has the Money Stored Away to Pay for It.

Paris, Aug. 22.—The bank of France is endeavoring to retain its gold to meet purchases of American wheat. In an interview the governor of the bank estimated that £20,000,000 would be required for wheat payments.

He stated that the scarcity of gold frequently happens, and though it may last some time there is no cause for alarm. The condition of the bank has seldom been so satisfactory as at present.

It was stated by another bank officer that the premium on gold was caused by money changers, who had learned that the bank was holding gold and who collected all the metal they could at a small premium, hoping to reap a profit when the wheat arrives.

A CHICAGO CIRCUS.

Prospective Scenes at the Coming World's Fair.

The World's fair at Chicago will afford a singular spectacle for a man broad enough to take in the whole show in all its bearings, political, moral and economic.

There are the great producing Christian nations of the earth all coming together, each to show the others what it is accomplishing in industry and commerce.

Of course the purpose of each is to advertise its products and thereby increase its trade and commerce.

But the French exhibitor, meeting Mr. Armour in some Chicago hotel, will say: "What's the use of producing fine fabrics for export while you set McKinley's tariff war dogs on to worry them out of your markets?"

"You're another," will be Armour's quick retort. "What's the use of turning out an American hog that has no rival in the known world only to see it shut out of the French market by your cheese-and-chestnut-eating legislators?"

While Armour and his French adversary are exchanging compliments, a German and a Russian may be engaged in similar hot recriminations. Beside them may be an indignant Italian, accusing both of playing the same game of exclusion.

Surveying the whole scene, a representative of Mr. John Bull's dominions may exclaim: "You're all a set of self-seeking disciples of the policy of mutual injury, each pot calling the neighboring kettle black." At this all may be expected to exclaim in concert: "Get out, you great international peddler and free trade hypocrite! We propose to protect our people and lift the world out of universal cheapness."

Such is the circus in prospect at Chicago and some skillful caricaturist might work it into a cartoon, which, if placed upon the walls of the art department of the great show, would deserve to take the first prize.—Boston Globe.

Russian Rye.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—Exports of rye from Russia to Germany are being pushed to the utmost. At all frontier stations wagonloads are accumulating. At Wirballen 350 wagons arrived yesterday and are awaiting transfer wagons from Germany. Probably 1,000 wagons will pass the Eydtkuhnen station alone before the 27th. The estimated total from Poland is 30,000 tons.

Wheat is being bought for the German army. At present half-rye and half-wheat rations are being served. Rye has fallen at Kovno from 135 to 95 copecks per pood.

Live Stock in Good Shape.

Liverpool, Aug. 22.—The Dominion line steamship Oregon from Montreal, August 12, with a shipment of 437 cattle and 110 sheep arrived here this morning and landed her live stock in good condition, with the exception of two sheep.

Emperor and Empress.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—The emperor and empress arrived in Berlin this morning. Shortly after their arrival they proceeded on horseback to the Templehof, where the emperor reviewed the guards.

COMMON SENSE QUESTIONS.

TO THE EDITOR: A few more queries for the anti-Campbellite bill, McKinley "protectionists."

What do you think about having to pay 5 cents on each new tooth you buy of a dentist, which if you buy a full set of 28 will now cost $1.40 extra all on account of the McKinley bill?

What do you think about having to pay an extra tariff tax on all you eat except sugar, which was put down on the McKinley bill on the basis of free trade, and then in the same "bill" charge you 5 cents on each of your new teeth with which you chew this high tariffed taxed food?

What do you farmers think about the decrease or drop in the price of wool under the celebrated McKinley bill?

What do you farmers have to say about the increase in the price of all woolen goods you are compelled to buy, including your stocking yarn, all on account of the McKinley bill?

What do you farmers think of the additional tariff tax on your binding twine?

What do you farmers think of the slang and low flings indulged in during the present campaign as applied to you as a part of our people, which you hear uttered and see in the republican newspapers each day?

What are the apparent prospects for you farmers obtaining an increase in the price of your farms and your farm products, when wool is less in price this year than last?

Do you think it will cause a special "boom" for McKinley or his infamous bill?

What can everybody say about the price of sugar when you can buy 20 pounds now under the free trade sample in way of free sugar this year under the McKinley bill instead of 10 pounds last year under the protection high tariff style—which do you like the best?

What is your opinion as to the additional price added by way of a tariff tax to each plush or cloth cloak you buy this fall for your wives, sisters, daughters or mothers as compared with last fall prices before the awful increase of tariff tax by the McKinley bill?

What benefit do you farmers, mechanic or any other person who uses tin in any form, from a tin whistle, such as are used by McKinley or his advocates to whistle up their courage—or any other article made of tin—receive from the additional tax on tin?

What benefit can our laboring community derive from the establishment of tin manufactories in this country when such fellows as Neidringhaus of St. Louis import Welch workmen to do the work, with a big addition of tariff tax on all the tin manufactured for the benefit of the manufacturers alone! Can some of you astute specimens among the McKinley advocates solve this conundrum?

What ratio of profits do you fellows in the mercantile business realize as compared with prices prior to the passage of the McKinley bill on goods bought this year since the tariff tax robbery became a law, in force when you are selling goods at the old prices, trying to cover the outrage by selling your goods at cost or below?

What do you call the "reciprocity" humbug of Jim Blaine, which he is using for a bait in the political swim. Again we ask why don't tattoed Jimmie Blaine and little Benny conclude the "reciprocity" "free trade" job with Great Britain? All little Benny would have to do would be to sing his old Fiji Island proclamation song; for everyone knows that old England is anxious for just such a document from our white-cravated little gentleman. But no, Blaine nor Benny neither, manifest by their works any honesty in this "reciprocity" dodge.

What do you think of the statement of Blaine, while in the last billion dollar congress and engaged on the McKinley job, when he said that "bill" would be an outrage upon the people of this country and a disgrace to the United States. Was Jim honest in that statement?

What do you think of Dr. Charlie Foster's sick treasury and of his counsel of financial doctors, viz: Dr. George W. Davis, with Dr. John Iceberg Sherman and Calico Charlie Foster as resident mathematical manipulator, digging up the "old reserve funds" as a means of increasing the patient's pulse to the standard of the days when Dr. Grover Cleveland was in charge of the old treasury, which now seems to be in the last stages of the McKinley grippe?

When and where would you farmers like to hear McKinley tell what he has to say, if he can say anything about the drop in the price of wool since the passage of his infamous bill?

How can you protectionists account for the death-like silence indulged in by McKinley on the peculiar down and up prices of wool and tin?

How can you protectionists account for the solemn silence of Protectionist Bill McKinley when asked to explain why so many business failures are occurring in this country since the passage of his "bill?"

Why can't some astute McKinley protectionists inform us how many democratic farmers or laborers in Ohio have turned over to the side of McKinley and will vote for him this fall? Have you found any cases of that kind?

What's the matter with all the "protection" papers; can't they find a single case of conversion from Campbell and free trade to McKinley and protection—such an item would be quite a change from the monotony of the old machine, would it not?

Now tell us if you can what single benefit to the value of 1 cent, the people of this country have received from the passage of the McKinley bill—except the single item which placed sugar on the basis of free trade? M. O. WAGGONER.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Abolish Red Tape.

TO THE EDITOR: William Schultz, an employe of the Columbus & Hocking Valley railroad company, suffered the loss of a foot, which was injured on said road about a week ago. Mr. Schultz has a wife and two small children and resides at the corner of Forrer street and Junction avenue. He is a worthy man but unfortunately poor and needy. Considerable comment has been made in regard to our charitable organizations for not providing means to relieve immediate need. In this particular case the company's physician was called and advised amputation of the three toes, which met with some opposition from the family, this opposition serving as an excuse for the M. D. to abandon the case. It is necessary to exercise patience and charity in these cases and another physician was called, who removed the man to St. Vincent's hospital in preparation for an operation. Here another delay was encountered on account of inability to secure payment for the patient's keeping. The infirmary director refused to render aid because the case was not reported to them before being taken to the hospital, and had it not been for the tender mercies and sympathy of the Sisters of Charity, who finally offered to keep the man free of charge, he would have, as a last resort, been taken to the infirmary, which would have been decidedly painful for him in his state. Does it not seem that too much red tape is manifested in our charitable organizations for the good of this and similar cases; and is it not an imposition to place such cases in a hospital to be treated gratis when $5 a week is all that is required to pay expenses? There are several other cases at St. Vincent's under like circumstances. A plea for a better and more energetic method of disposing of emergent cases is herein given. M. B.

STALKS FROM THE CLOSET.

A Family Skeleton's Unwelcome Appearance.

Dayton Society Shocked by a Suit Filed for Divorce and Alimony.

Dayton, O., Aug. 22.—A suit for alimony filed in the common pleas court by Mrs. Josephine P. Stockstill, against her husband, James Stockstill, promises in its development some startling disclosures as to a family skeleton that has been harbored in their palatial home for years.

Stockstill amassed a large fortune in the nursery business, and his wife has a large income from her father's estate. Both have moved in the wealthy and fashionable circles and are related to the old families of the city.

The story of their domestic unhappiness has been known to a select few for years. It is only of recent date, though, that it became the common property of gossip and scandal.

According to the latter, Stockstill has for years worshiped at the shrine of a beautiful girl, who, bearing his name, is domiciled in a luxurious home at Chicago.

The stories as to her identity and history are conflicting. Stockstill, it seems, claims her as his daughter, the offspring of an illicit love in his youthful and unmarried days.

When this ugly skeleton stalked from the family closet, discord and unhappiness thenceforth reigned in the family home, which is one of surroundings emblematic of wealth and suggestive of happiness.

There were estrangements and partings, then reconciliation, and again separations until at last the wife has made final appeal to the courts.

In her petition she says that she had separated from her husband on account of "habitual and constant ill treatment, and his occasional acts of personal violence, and on fear of future violence." She further says that "he has been guilty of gross neglect of martial duty for more than three years last past, and that for 17 years past he has compelled her to purchase all her own clothing, all new furniture that might be needed about the house, and the clothing for the two children while they were unmarried and at home."

She further charges that he was habitually coarse and unkind, making her life unbearable at his home, and that she has been compelled to abandon it for self protection. Owing to the wealth and standing of the parties, and the promised exposure of the family skeleton, the case excites interest.

FEARFUL MINE EXPLOSION.

Four Men Blown Into Eternity By It.

Burke, Idaho, Aug. 22.—Two hundred pounds of giant powder exploded at the mouth of the lower tunnel of the Black Bear mine near here with terrible effect.

Four men were imprisoned at the breast of the drift by the rock which caved in and were suffocated.

The bodies of four other miners have not been found, but all hope of finding them alive has been given up.

The explosion was terrific, tearing up the earth and caving in the tunnel for a distance of 100 feet.

The rescuing party recovered the bodies of four men, G. McNeill, general manager; John Jense, assistant manager; Robert Blackburn and John Barrows, miners. There are four others missing, and it is feared their bodies were blown ot atoms.

DREADFUL SKIN DISEASE

Afflicts a Well-Known Merchant. Itching and Burning Terrible. Doctors and All Remedies Fail.

Tries Cuticura. Relieved by the First Application and Entirely Cured in Five Weeks.

About 18 months ago a small speck appeared on my Ankle: it resembled a fish scale; it became larger, and I consulted a physician who pronounced it psoriasis or monied disease, because it resembled money. I applied an ointment, but it spread until at last it covered almost my entire body. My suffering was something terrible, burning and itching sensation continually until it became almost unendurable. I suffered tortures especially at night, and for two months I was compelled to sleep with gloves on. I became desperate. I would have given anything to be relieved of the itching sensation. I tried a number of remedies without any relief. I was requested to try CUTICURA: this I did, and to my great surprise I was relieved after the first application. I used the CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT according to directions for about four or five weeks when I was entirely cured. But what a relief it was to me after the suffering I went through. I cannot speak with too much favor for the "CUTICURA REMEDIES," and would recommend it to all those who are suffering from the same disease that I have suffered.

AFTER THE BALL.

The music has died away.
Its rhythm has ceased to thrill;
But echoing notes astray
Are loud in my fancy still,
The ring of that waltz-quadrille,
Like a lullaby song of old,
Is sounding afresh in my drowsy ear,
And wheeling before my eyes appear,
With gracefulness timed to the haunting strain,
Gay ribbon, bright jewel and gorgeous train,
A vision of silk and gold.

Fair faces with joy replete,
On muscular shoulders lean;
Feet, daintily sandaled feet,
Coquettishly dart between;
White skirts but a moment seen,
Yet lavish in deep display,
Go saucily by with their wanton sweep,
Like patches of foam on the stormy deep,
And fanciful columns retreat, advance,
And mingle again in the fairy dance,
So wild in my brain to-day.

Stay, resonant music loud,
Yet sweet as a cradle song;
Nor vanish, O phantom crowd,
Who gracefully move along;
Still closer around me throng,
Forever I fain would keep
Your beauty to compass the mystic bed
Where reveries nestle and dreams are bred.
Draw nearer and enter my closing eyes,
That closed they may see you again arise
To dance in the halls of Sleep.

Vegetation in the Alps recedes downward from year to year. Formerly Alpine roses grow at an altitude of 7,600 feet. Now they are seldom found higher than 6,500 feet, and are at that hight stunted. Beeches have gone down to 1,200 feet. Various berries, which once flourished 7,500 feet above sea level, do not grow in higher altitudes now than 5,800 feet.

Alaska is not so bad a country as it might be. The story is told that while the young German kaiser was watching a sham battle between some Russian cavalry he asked the czar for permission to take charge of one side. It was granted, and the kaiser proposed to show the Russians what a real soldier, who was not a shopkeeper nor a tailor, could do. While he was following rule 33 in his book on tactics the Russians surrounded his supposed army and he was captured. It is said he went to his tent and would not come out for the rest of the day.

A book belonging to the family of the Prince de Ligne, now in France, is said to be the most curious book in the world, because it is neither written nor printed. The letters of the text are cut out of each folio upon the finest vellum; and, being interleaved with blue paper, it is as easy read as print. The labor bestowed upon it was excessive. Rudolph II., of Germany, offered for it in 1640 eleven thousand ducats, probably equal to $60,000 at this day. A remarkable circumstance connected with this literary treasure is that it bears the royal arms of England; but it cannot be traced to have ever been in that country.

The figure 9 is curiously and intimately connected with all the great gold mining excitements of the nineteenth century. The great Algerian gold bubble formed and broke in 1809. Next came the Manzanan mountain craze in 1849, when solid bowlders of gold as large as flour barrels were reported. The California gold fever broke out in 1849 and raged until counteracted by the Pike's Peak boom of 1859. Ten years later, in 1869, "Old Virginny," the celebrated miner, struck the lucky lead which made Virginia City and Nevada famous in the mining annals of the world. Eighteen hundred and seventy-nine came in on time with the Leadville frenzy and the famous "carbonates" of Lake county, Colorado. Eighteen hundred and eighty-nine broke the charm, but 1899 may make up for lost time, there being two 9s in that date.

LOCAL FOOTLIGHT GOSSIP.

Louise Galloway, of Toledo, to Appear Here Soon.

Doings of Other Professionals of This City, and Lines About Plays and Players.

This evening at the People's Bob Slavin closes his first week as a white face comedian. Mr. Slavin had a hard week's work and it would be unfair to judge from it whether or no he is a success in this line of the theatrical business. The show opened here and Slavin wrote the farces, most of the music, directed the rehearsals, arranged the dances thought out all the business for the other people and did very little thinking for himself. He was easy, natural and "got a laugh" for almost everything he did. He is a hard, earnest worker and if there is anything in the people or the show he will bring it out. This fact doesn't however appease the public who don't like to lose one of the best black face artists that ever donned the cork and gain a white face comedian of whose ability in that line they know nothing. Slavin gets $175 a week at present, but that is nothing for him, for when with the McNish, Johnson & Slavin minstrels, the company one season cleared $47,000. Slavin is a favorite all over the country and everybody will be pleased to hear of him with a better company than May Russell's.

It seems that all the old minstrel favorites have forsaken their first love. Next week Carroll Johnson will appear at the People's in E. E. Kidder's new comedy-drama. The Gossoon, which made its initial bow at Detroit Monday last and scored a most pronounced success. The story of the Gossoon is as follows:

Clancy O'Connel is a happy, simple, trusting young Irishman who owns a small estate "half bog and half stone," and possesses a handsome sister Rose, "the prettiest girl from Fairhead to Kinsale." An English adventurer pays attention to this girl under an assumed name, and with an eye on her snug little fortune. The sister of his deserted wife appears on the scene and is about to expose him when Rose faints from agitation at being repulsed by her scheming lover, who dared not, under the circumstances, show his feeling for her. Enraged, he endeavors to attack his sister-in-law, but Clancy steps between them, and his ringing words, "Stand back, ye have a man to strike this time," ends the first interesting act.

CARROLL JOHNSON.

Act second develops the plot rapidly; Kirke, the adventurer, plans with Cullen, a ne'er-do-well, to lure Rose to a deserted spot, when Kirke will elope with her, after convincing Rose that her brother approves the match. Clancy spoils the plan. Act third shows the attempted revenge of Kirke and Cullen and presents a most magnificent picture of the Lakes of Killarney in winter, when they unroof the cabin in the blinding snow, and the interference of Clancy, who defeats the villains, forming an unusually exciting finale to a most exciting act. Act four shows the wedding party, a double one, the wedding dance, Clancy's songs and an atmosphere of happiness and jollity. Kirke and his confrere, Cullen, now plan to kill Clancy and the attempt is frustrated in a most novel, exciting and ingenious manner. The play, of course, ends happily. There is a strong vein of comedy throughout the piece and in it Johnson does the best work of his life. He is bound to find a leading place on the Irish stage, especially when he has such an efficient manager as W. H. Halloway to pilot him.

A charming young Toledo girl, Miss Louise Galloway, daughter of Mrs. S. Galloway, of Ontario street, will make her bow to an audience of her friends at the People's theater the week of August 31, in the well-known piece, the Streets of New York. Miss Galloway is 22 years of age, and has resided in Toledo about ten years. She finished her education in the local schools, and about four years ago went on the stage, commencing at the foot of the ladder. By hard work she is steadily elevating herself and becoming a favorite. She is playing the waif in the Streets of New York, and is making a big hit in the part. She is a clever dancer and singer, petite, pretty and graceful. The papers everywhere speak well of her work. She will be given a rousing reception here.

LOUISE GALLOWAY.

Of Miss Anna Belmont of this city, who opened with Sol Smith Russell this week in his new play, Peaceful Valley, the Minneapolis Tribune says:

"It was a delightfully easy and unaffected impersonation of Niobe Farquhar which Miss Anna Belmont gave. This young woman is promising. She is graceful in action, thoroughly at home in her work and reads her lines trippingly on the tongue in a spontaneous manner not noticeable in the average actress. She is bound to be a success."

Miss Belmont will appear in Toledo during the present season.

The Woman's Relief corps, of Toledo, is going to present Uncle Tom's Cabin with a company composed entirely of ladies and will perform before an audience of ladies only. The male sex is to be tabooed completely. Mrs. R. G. Bacon will appear as Topsy, Mrs. Elizabeth Mansfield Irving will play Aunt Ophelia and other well known ladies will complete the cast, even to the male parts.

Mr. W. H. Halloway has been in the city for a couple of days getting things in shape for Carroll Johnson's appearance at the People's next week. Mr. Holloway is Johnson's business manager this year, and if the Gossoon is not a signal success it will not be his fault. Last year he was ahead of Brady's great Metropolis and is one of the best-known theatrical men on the road. He also has a warm spot in his make-up for Toledo.

The Same Old Tale.
By Geo. W. Stevens.

Philander Smythe an actor was,
At times he would live high,
Tho' generally poor Smythe was broke,
But then, he'd act or die.
So happened it an angel came,
A manager was he,
Who signed our friend to play a part,
In "Perils by the Sea."
A cheap creation, freshly penned,
A snap, a hollow fake;
The first stand was at Rome, N. Y.,
To see how it would take.
They billed the town with cheap stock cuts,
Sought landlords who would trust,
And if the sale of seats was light,
The troup would have to "bust."
And so it proved—'tis oft the case,
They lived but for a night,
And ere another day had dawned,
The darkness saw their flight.
They trod the road and track until
New York's spires met their gaze,
Yet years to come you'll hear Smythe talk
Of good old palmy days,
When he was playing this and that
Of hits he made in Rome—
But let him talk, he knows full well
The times he hoofed it home.

A good company of local talent will put on the delightful litte opera The Mascot, some time during the coming season.

It has been a little warm in Toledo for the theaters, but considering all things they cannot complain of the business.

Harry S. Jones, of Toledo, joined Billy Emerson's minstrels at St. Louis yesterday in the capacity of assistant manager. He will be ahead of the show most of the time. He is a bright young man and has ability for advance or managerial work.

Miss Bessie Osterman of this city, opened in Hands Across the Sea at the Alhambra Theatre, Chicago, this week, and made an instantaneous hit. The first night she scored four encores on her specialty. She sings and dances cleverly and is making a hit with Ed. Harrigan's new song, "Maggie Murphy's Home," which is Reilly's 400.

Notes.

Ed King, of this city, is looking for a partner in a musical act. He wants a good comedian who can play several instruments.

J. H. Haverly is back in the theatrical business once more, and will put two companies on the road, one to be something new and novel in the minstrel line.

Hallen and Hart will appear in this city next Friday evening in Later On. This will be its last presentation in Toledo, as next season they appear in a new piece.

In Elmer E. Vance's railroad comedy-drama, The Limited Mail, there will be used on the stage for the first time, in Pittsburg, a $4,000 saw-mill, built for the company in Toledo.

Gordon D. Johnson, of this city, manager of the Powers' Ivy Leaf company, has gone to Rochester, where the piece opens Monday next, to superintend rehearsals. The company will appear in Toledo the week of September 7.

Carmencita is to appear in Toledo in connection with the Spanish Students.

Bob Slavin and the May Russell Burlesque company close their engagement at the People's this evening. The performance has been somewhat improved since the opening Monday evening.

Young J. K. Emmett will perpetuate his father's plays and character. He has surrounded himself with a first-class company and promises to prove a success. At any rate people will be anxious to see him. He plays a number of towns in this vicinity this month, but does not reach Toledo until later in the season.

Last evening during the funniest business in his specialty, Bob Slavn stopped and in his quiet manner said: "Ladies and gentlemen, my very dear friend, Carroll Johnson, is to open here next Monday in his new play, The Gossoon. I hope you will give him what we call a banner night. You all know Carroll Johnson, treat him well."

OIL TRAIN ON FIRE.

Disastrous Wreck Near Lime City.

Nobody Killed, but a Terrible Scattering and Destruction of Property.

Findlay, O., Aug. 22—(Special)—The most disastrous freight wreck by far which ever occurred on the T. C. & C. road happened at 7:40 last night between Lime City and Dowling. Through freight No. 16, north bound, colliding with a horse in the cattle guard, which was ground to atoms and the means of derailing the engine and 15 cars.

Seven of the cars were oil tank cars and the balance were loaded with grain, wire nails and brick.

The collision caused the tanks to explode with great force, and they threw a mantle of furious flames in all directions, consuming everything of an inflammable material and causing a loss to the company of from $25,000 to $30,000.

Engineer Harris, Fireman Dean and the head brakeman, just before the final crash, jumped, and thus saved their lives, each escaping with but a few painful bruises.

The farmers in the vicinity turned out and by their efforts saved the balance of the train by running it back out of the flames.

The exploding tanks, with their burning oil shooting up at least two hundred feet into the heavens, was one of the grandest displays of fireworks ever seen in that vicinity.

The company sent out their wreck crews and section men at once and had a temporary side track built around the wreck so that trains began running regularly this morning.

The special I. O. O. F. train returning from Toledo was held at Lime City for over ten hours. Many ladies and children actually suffered from hunger and fatigue.

The wreck, however, cut off all telegraphic communication.

WORLD'S FAIR NOTES.

The exposition directory has taken action under which adequate insurance will be placed upon all persons and property for which it can be held liable during the fair. It is the intention to place an insurance of something like $300,000,000 on the exhibits.

The effort to have a tribe of African pigmies exhibited at the exposition is pretty certain to succeed. Tippoo Tib has given his consent and the consent of the king of Belgium, which is also necessary, can easily be obtained, it is believed, through the state department.

Many interesting relics from San Domingo, where Columbus landed, have been received by the Washington office of the foreign affairs department of the exposition. The most valuable of these relics and the most interesting, perhaps, is the first church bell that ever rang out in the New World. It was presented to the colonists of the first settlement of San Domingo by Queen Isabella in appreciation of the fact that the first settlement bore her name. There is also an exact reproduction of the cross which Columbus raised immediately upon landing. The material of the cross is the the same exactly as that which Columbus nailed up, having been taken from the wood of a building erected in 1509. There are also in this collection facsimiles of the doors which close the cells in which the bones of Columbus repose. The carving on these doors is exquisite and they themselves are beautiful as a whole. There is also an anchor, supposed to have been lost by Columbus when his ship went to pieces on a subsequent voyage.

The confidence of people who have tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, in this preparation, is remarkable. It has cured many who have failed to derive any good whatever from other articles. For diseases caused by impure blood or low state of the system it is unsurpassed.

RIGHTS OF WHEELMEN.

Some Things Every Cyclist Should Know.

An Able Lawyer Defines the Statutes and Gives Good Advice—The Rights of the People Afoot.

W. M. Foster, a prominent Milwaukee lawyer, recently made an after-dinner speech which brimmed over with information for wheelmen, and from which the following extracts are given:

While there remains some ignorance on the part of non-riders—and of riders, too, as I have observed—regarding the rights and privileges of wheelmen, a few words upon the subject may be of use; for nothing will do more to hasten the disappearance of the now fast-dying prejudice against cycling and cyclers than a thorough knowledge by cyclers of their rights and a courteous insistence upon them; and, what is still more important, a thorough regard for the rights of those who do not ride.

Although the highest courts in this country have not passed upon the question whether or not the bicycle is a carriage, many of the lower courts have, following the English decisions, given it that status; and by common consent it is becoming to be considered a carriage, subject to the same laws regarding the use of highways as are carriages. I need, therefore, say nothing upon its status as a vehicle. In regard to the use of the highway, what concerns wheelmen most is the rights they have and what duties devolve upon them while on the road, these rights and duties being mostly in regard to meeting and passing other vehicles. The Wisconsin statute, which is similar to that of many other states, is as follows, (sec. 1591, R. S., Wis.): "Whenever any persons shall meet each other on any bridge or road, traveling with carriages, wagons, sleds, sleighs or other vehicles, each person shall reasonably drive his carriage or other vehicle to the right of the middle of the traveled part of such bridge or road, so that the respective carriages or other vehicles aforesaid may pass each other without interference." The question arises: What is the traveled part? From being with wheelmen on the road I know that many of them think the traveled part means that part which is beaten down into a track by hoofs and wheels. Such, however, is not the case. It has been decided by the courts that "the traveled part means that part which is wrought for traveling, not any track which may happen to be made by vehicles."

It follows that although this track may be the only part of the road that is ridable (which we all know, alas, is too often the case on our American roads), it is the duty of a wheelman, upon meeting a vehicle, he being in this traveled track but on the wrong side of the center of the wrought or worked part of the road, to give up the whole of this traveled track, even if he is obliged to dismount to do so. In practice this will seldom be found necessary, for as a rule, drivers, especially farmers and country people, are courteous enough to give wheelmen, when practicable, part of the beaten track. The same rule as to giving way applies, of course, to carriages upon the wrong side of the road, when meeting bicycles. The law of the road applies as well to streets as to country highways, subject to such reasonable regulations as the municipal authorities may enact. These regulations would be regarding speed of riding, coasting, riding on sidewalks and the use of bells and lanterns.

Respecting fast riding: A bicycle is so easily controlled, turned to right or left or stopped suddenly, I am not prepared to say that a rate of speed improper for a horse and carriage would not be proper for it.

And regarding coasting: While it is one of the most pleasant and exhilerating parts of road riding, on steep inclines in cities its practice is reprehensible, to say the least. More bicycle accidents occur through coasting in cities than in any other way.

There is a question connected with the use of streets which is not likely to arise concerning country roads, viz., the right of bicycle riding on sidewalks.

The sidewalk is that portion of the street or highway dedicated to the use of pedestrians. No carriage has a right there, and the bicycle being a carriage, it is very doubtful whether a municipality can, by ordinance or otherwise, give cyclers any right to ride on the sidewalks.

Some of you may have asked yourselves whether cyclers could lawfully be subjected to the payment of toll upon toll roads and whether they can be excluded from such roads.

The answer to the first question would depend upon the charter of the turnpike company; but in all probability the charter would be broad enough to cover all classes of carriages or vehicles, in which case the toll could be levied upon bicycles.

In answer to the second question, let me quote from decisions upon the subject: "Turnpike roads form a class of highways upon which the company operating them has a right to set up gates and levy tolls. A turnpike is nevertheless a public easement, and every traveler, on paying the legal rate of toll, is entitled to use it.

Every traveler has the same right to use it upon payment of the toll established by law, as he would have to use any other public highway.

Referring to carrying bicycles on railroads—some wheelmen, I have heard it said, labor under the idea that railroads carry bicycles free because every person is entitled to transportation, without pay of a certain amount of baggage. Bicycles and baggage have no further relation to each other than that they begin with the same letter, and a wheelman is no more entitled to have his wheel carried free than he would his horse and buggy.

Two years ago the Western Passenger association came within one vote of refusing to carry wheels free, and many railroads in the country do so refuse.

Following a discussion of the rights and privileges of wheelmen, the question naturally arises: what right have members of the L. A. W. to protection by the league? And here comes in also the subject of the abuse by wheelmen of their privileges.

An L. A. W. member has no claim of protection from the league if he gets into trouble through his own negligence or wilfulness: if he is riding on the wrong side of the road and injures some one or is injured, if he is riding recklessly or coasting the streets and either gives or receives injury or is taken in by some watchful policeman, or if he gets into trouble through riding on the sidewalk—where he has no right to be—or even taking a wheel that does not belong to him.

If, on the other hand, while within the bounds of law himself, he or his wheel is recklessly or maliciously injured, or he falls into the clutches of some overzealous officer, or an attempt is made to deprive him of some right to the use of public highways, bridges, streets or parks, or, perhaps, if some one is caught attempting to appropriate his wheel, then it is the duty of the division of the L. A. W. of which he is a member, to the extent (I believe the custom is) of half the money in its treasury, and behind that of the L. A. W. to see his rights protected and enforced.

To Observe the Sabbath.

Mansfield, O., Aug. 22—Mayor Newlon continues to bring violators of the Sunday closing law up with a short turn. Adam Poth pleaded guilty to the charge against him, was fined $23.60, and is now in the city prison serving a five days' sentence.

The mayor to-day gave notice to the proprietors of fruit stands, who have heretofore sold fruit, ice cream, cigars, and soft drinks on Sunday, that they must hereafter keep their places closed on that day.

Cutting Canada Off.

New York, Aug. 22—A special to the Herald from Halifax says: It is stated upon unquestioned authority that Spain has notified the imperial government of her intention to terminate the existing treaty under which Canadian products are admitted into Spanish West Indies under the "most favored nation" clause of the convention between those countries.

Must not be confounded with common cathartic or purgative pills. Carter's Little Liver Pills are entirely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

WOMAN'S APARTMENT HOUSE.

A Former Toledo Lady Agitates the Subject of Pleasant Homes.

Since the failure of the Women's Hotel in New York, planned and built by Millionaire Stewart, whose rules and regulations were so prison like under Judge Hilton's management, that no self-respecting woman could be a guest at the establishment, the one hundred thousand professional women of the great metropolis have unceasingly sought to inaugurate measures for the erection by philanthropists and capitalists of a Woman's Appartment House.

The proposition now under way is quite likely to culminate in success, as Hon. A. S. Hewitt and other humanitarian capitalists have agreed to erect such a building when six hundred professional and business women sign a paper stating they will occupy it, and that it is needed.

Among ladies interested in the proposed apartment house, are Mrs. Eliza Auchard Conner, of the Women's Park club, Mrs. Candace Wheeler, of the Women's Exchange and Decorative Art Society, and Miss Janet C. Lewis, formerly of this city, the well-known artist in portraiture of photo-crayon and pasel. In an article in Architecture and Building, Miss Lewis gives valuable suggestions of the needs of such a tenement, as the following extracts show:

"It ought to be built on generous proportions, the ground floor to be stores, devoted to any well established business conducted by women, of which there are many successful ones in New York paying large rents. A court suitable for a flower market would meet a growing demand.

"The house should contain a restaurant on the ground floor, a general parlor on the second floor, with suites of from two to four rooms and bath. On the upper floor single and less expensive suites of parlor and bed rooms for music teachers, stenographers, type-writers and other professions now open to women. The top floor should be devoted to studios, thus meeting another long felt want. Summing it all up, let us have an 'Alpine' or 'Benedict' for women, involving no more rules or regulations than would govern any well-conducted apartment house, for these women will not subject themselves to any more restrictions than are necessary to the proper management of such a house. Being business women, they are reliable. A well known landlord of large experience, states that he finds women universally the better tenants, usually conscientious about paying rent and less critical and exacting in their demands."

LINES SUGGESTED BY DEATH.

The shadows are gathering into my room,
Shrouding and covering all things in gloom.
Are they bearing my Lizzie away—
Ah the wind sounds like a moan.
I may ne'er see again the dearly loved home.
The distance seems cruel that stretches between
Where nothing but darkness and night intervene.

[Dedicated to the father and mother of Lizzie Feeley, by John Mattimoe.]

Mr. F. H. Stark has resigned his position with the Consolidated Rolling Stock company, East Toledo, to accept a position on the W. & L. E. railway as general car foreman. He will have charge of the new shops which are to be built in the near future.

In equity.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, entered in the above entitled cause on June 5, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division, entered in the above entitled cause on July 1, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, entered in the above entitled cause on June 29, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Michigan, Southern Division, entered in the above entitled cause on June 30, 1891, we, Benjamin F. Wade and Hiram F. Carleton, the Special Masters designated by said decrees, will sell without appraisement, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, in the United States Court room, in the City of Toledo, County of Lucas, and state of Ohio, at three o'clock, P. M. on the 6th day of October, 1891, the mortgaged premises and property mentioned in said decree, and thereby directed to be sold. The same will be sold in the manner and upon the terms hereinafter stated, viz.:

1. Said Special Masters will offer for sale separately that portion of the property of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad company known as the Central Division, being the property described in the first mortgage of the Cincinnati, Van Wert & Michigan Railroad company, dated April 14, 1881, together with the proportion of equipment, material and supplies appertaining to such Division which, upon the reference ordered in said decrees, shall be decreed by the court to properly belong to the same, and to be covered by said mortgage. Said property will be offered for sale as an entirety, without appraisement or redemption. No bid will be accepted therefor from any bidder for a sum less than $150,000, nor from any bidder who shall not, if requested by the Special Masters, place in their hands, or deposit with them, as a pledge that he will make good his bid, if accepted by the court, the sum of $15,000 in cash, or first morgage bonds of said Cincinnati, Van Wert & Michigan Railroad company to the amount of $100,000 of principal. 2. Said Special Masters will offer for sale separately the property covered by and embraced in the consolidated mortgage of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad company, dated December 1, 1886, excluding the said Central Division above described, together with the proportion of equipment, material and supplies appertaining to the same which, upon the reference ordered in said decrees, shall be decreed by the Court to properly belong to the same, and to be covered by said Consolidated Mortgage. Said property (excluding the Central Division) will be sold as an entirety, without appraisement or redemption. No bid will be accepted therefor from any bidder for a sum less than $450,000, nor from any bidder who shall not, if requested by the Special Masters, place in their hands, or deposit with them, as a pledge that he will make good his bid, if accepted by the Court, the sum of $25,000 in cash or Consolidated Mortgage Bonds to the amount of $250,000 of principal.

The said Special Masters will use their discretions in respect to which separate parcel shall be first offered for sale.

After having offered said properties for sale separately, as foresaid, said Special Masters will then offer the entire property covered by said Consolidated Mortgage including said Central Division, for sale as one parcel, without appraisement or redemption, and if the highest bid received by them for the same shall exceed the aggregate amount of the several highest bids for the two parcels when offered separately, then the whole will be struck off and sold as an entirety to the person making such bid for the whole. No bid for said property as an entirety will be accepted from any bidder for a sum less than $600,000, nor from any bidder who shall not, if requested by said Special Masters, place in their hands or deposit with them, as a pledge that he will make good his bid, if accepted by the Court, the sum of $40,000 in cash, or Van Wert First Mortgage Bonds, or Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, or both, of the total par value of $350,000 of principal. The purchaser or purchasers at such sale may, if he or they so elect, be subrogated to the rights of Walston H. Brown, Receiver, under a certain agreement between said Receiver and the Haskell & Barker Car Company, dated January 18, 1890, for purchase of equipment, upon assuming his liabilities under the same.

Of the price for which said properties shall be sold, there shall be paid in cash, at the time of the sale, a sum equal to the amount of cash deposit hereinbefore required, and also, at the same time, and from time to time thereafter, such further portions of said purchase price as the Court may direct; and the Court reserves the right to reject any bid, and to take and to sell said premises and property, upon failure of any purchaser for twenty days to comply with any order of the Court requiring payment. The balance of the purchase price not required to be paid in cash may either be paid in cash, or the purchaser may satisfy and make good said balance of his bid, in whole or in part, by paying over the outstanding First Mortgage Bonds and overdue coupons, or either, the outstanding Income Bonds, and the outstanding Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, and overdue coupons, or either, at such price or value as shall be equivalent to the amount that the holders thereof would be entitled to receive thereon, in case the entire purchase price were paid in cash. The foregoing provisions shall be applicable, whether the said properties be sold in separate parcels, or as a unit. If any bid shall be accepted by the court, and the person making the same shall fail to comply with all the conditions of sale and all orders of the court with respect thereto, the sum deposited by the bidder shall be forfeited, and shall be applied as the court may direct.

Reference is hereby made to said decrees for a more specific description of the mortgaged property therein ordered to be sold, and for further particulars of the terms and conditions of sale.

Her clear gray eyes were grieved and wet;
She owned her fault, for pardon plead,
And spoke some words I can't forget;
"If you were little, just like me,
Would ever you be naughty, too?
If I were only all grown up,
I could be always good—like you!"

She meant it! Her sweet innocence,
Which sent so sharp and sure a dart,
Knows nothing of the wicked moods
That sometimes sway her mother's heart.
Wrath, envy, folly, discontent,
The selfish impulse—not withstood—
These things accuse me, yet my child
Believes that I am always good.

On Sabbath days the man of God
Reproves me often, unaware;
Ashamed, I hear his earnest voice
My own unworthy deeds declare.
And nobler lives rebuke my own;
But none had ever shaft so true
As she whose loving faith declared
"I—could be always good—like you."
—Babyhood.

THE WOMAN SPEAKS.

Do you know you have asked for the costliest thing
Ever made by the hand above;
A woman's heart, and a woman's life,
And a woman's wonderful love?
Do you know you have asked for this priceless thing
As a child might ask for a toy,
Demanding what others have died to win,
With the reckless dash of a boy?

You have written my lesson of duty out,
Men like you have questioned me.
Now stand at the bar of my woman's soul,
Until I shall question thee.
You require your mutton shall always be hot,
Your socks and your shirts be whole;
I require your heart to be as true as God's stars,
And as pure as is heaven your soul.

You require a cook for your mutton and beef;
I require a much greater thing;
A seamstress you're wanting for socks and shirts;
I look for a man and a king—
A king for the beautiful realm called Home,
And a man that his Maker, God,
Shall look upon as He did on the first
And say: "It is very good!"

I am fair and young, but the rose will fade
From my soft young cheek one day;
Will you love me then, 'mid the falling leaves,
As you did 'mid the blossoms of May?
Is your heart an ocean, so strong and deep,
I may launch my all on its tide?
A loving woman finds heaven or hell,
The day she becomes a bride.

I require all things that are grand and true,
All things that a man should be;
If you give this all I would stake my life
To be all you demand of me.
If you cannot be this—A laundress and cook
You can hire—and little to pay;
But a woman's heart and a woman's life
Are not to be won that way.

A MIDSUMMER DAY.

Midsummer was clothed with sunshine,
As we went forth to meet her to-day,
And into our hearts came the longing
That she might forever stay.

That all days might be just as sunny,
All skies ever seem azure blue,
With no clouds but such fleecy white ones,
Having rifts of blue showing through.

The harvests were gathered for threshing,
The stubble fields looked brown;
While the straw from the separator,
Was forming the great stack's crown.

The river, wound on by the highway,
With shady boughs swaying above,
Its surface was like to a mirror
Which reflects back the objects we love.

The orchards were fragrant with fruitage,
The peach limbs were propped lest they break,
The cows wandered down through the meadow
For a drink from the cool, little lake.

At length—longest days have an ending—
The swallows begin homeward to fly,
The sun sinks low toward its setting,
As the time for sweet rest draws nigh.

Oh, gold that is streaked with crimson;
Oh, mountains of purple and gray,
What more could one wish or ask for
To complete the mid-summer day?
H. M. T.

The conflict of opinion and the war of words go on. What may woman do, and what may she not do? (And the woman goes on, doing as she has done since the days of Eve in the garden, just what she makes up her mind to do.) Thomas Wentworth Higginson, in his "Women and Men" column of Harper's Bazar, enters his protest against heading newspaper articles or newspaper columns "Of Interest to Women." He says:

How many years or centuries will still pass, is it likely, before the colleges for women, and all their array of professional schools and various "annexes," will banish from the daily papers those rather depressing columns headed "Of Interest to Women?" Not that these columns are themselves uninteresting, even to men. Even that indifferent sex may like to know what wedding presents Queen Victoria gave her god-daughter, Miss Ponsonby, and how to tell the real coffee bean from the new French imitation. They may also dwell with interest, especially if they chance to be themselves engaged in the retail dry goods business, on all the novelties of dress, the "recherche parasol," and the "satin-finished foulards;" and they may ponder with thoughtful wonder over the latest London invention of the "enclosed skirt." If men are interested in these things, why not women? And there is therefore nothing wrong in assuming the fact. The melancholy thing is in the continued assumption that women will be interested in these things and in these only, and that all the rest—the great fire, the tornado, the tariff debates, the Irish question—will have for them no interest.

And so on for a column, the views of a broad-minded gentleman and scholar. But there are many men still of the old habit of thought, that women will be and should be interested in foulards but not in the tariff, in cotton beans but not in the Irish question, etc.

A physician of the old school handed the writer of this to-day a medical magazine, carefully folded over (so that nothing too learned might accidentally be read) at the account of the death of a young lady at the age of 25 years, of whom it was said that she had been highly educated, had graduated with honors under a rigid examination and had made a brilliant beginning of a professional career, when suddenly stricken with death. "It is a grave question," said this medical review, "if women can stand the strain of high pressure in education and in subsequent professional life." One wonders if this physician, presuming the article to have been written by a physician, as is natural for such a journal, never lost any other woman patient at the age of twenty-five, who was not highly educated and not in professional life. Women have died at all ages and not all highly educated women die of brain pressure or nervous prostration.

There is always necessity in guarding against overwork of brain or of body, and women may need to be more careful than men, but whenever one professional woman does break down it seems as though men would never be done drawing a moral from it. A curious instance of this has just been observed in connection with the sad death of the distinguished lawyer and writer, Mrs. Lelia Robinson Sawtelle. Mrs. Sawtelle died on August 10 at her summer residence in Amherst, N. H., from the effects of medicine taken to quiet her nervous system and to induce sleep. She was born in 1850, became a newspaper writer in girlhood, studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1883 (the first woman admitted in Massachusetts), established a lucrative practice, wrote two law volumes, "Law Made Easy," and "Law of Husband and Wife;" continued to contribute to magazines and newspapers, and in addition was a wife and housekeeper.

It is almost certain the gifted lady abused her natural gifts by overwork. At any rate an attack of grip this spring found her without strength to throw it off, nervous prostration followed and then the sudden end of a promising life. The occasion was made the text of many sermons in the press to the effect that woman could not and should not and must not undertake work of this kind, because this one woman had died of over-doing. Then some writer who remembers dates, called attention to the fact that there was just one year to a day between the death of Mrs. Sawtelle and John Boyle O'Reilly; that both broke down in the same way, from the same cause; both accidentally took overdoses of a sleeping potion and with fatal effect. The "Blanche, Tray and Sweetheart" who had rushed into print yelping at the heels of women who have chosen new and disputed fields of labor were silenced. For who should say because the talented O'Reilly broke down in literary work that no other man could or should pursue it?

The question of the ability of women to do work in certain lines has two sides. First, her ability to do the work without injury to herself, and, second, her ability to do the work she chooses as well as a man can do it, for she has no right to compete with him for the work unless she can do it as well. The opinion held by the writer of this column does not need to be restated, as it is known to all of the Household, and in the proper spirit of fairness another and different opinion is here given, that of a man who is himself a good literary worker.

Then comes the question: Is woman's work as good as man's? asks Walter Besant. Well, it certainly is not. The mass of women are not such good workers as the average man. Some things, indeed, they do not seem able to do at all. Their views on art are petty, conventional and finicking. They lower every art they touch—always with a few brilliant exceptions. And they are the worst enemies to labor of all kinds, because they are cheaper; they take anything that is offered them; they are obliged to take anything.

In literature, for instance, certain magazines are entirely written by women, and the pay they receive would be simply ludicrous if it were not pitiful. One girl I know—a very clever girl, who can write well—was employed for some time by a man who brings out cheap novelettes. She got 50 shillings for writing a story of 30,000 words, that is to say, a penny for every 50 words. And she was not allowed to put her name to the thing, because, as her sweater told her, she would become known and others would want her work and he would have to pay her more.

This is surely a sweeping indictment, that women are poor workmen and cheap workmen, both, but it stands to show how the question is still viewed by some who could afford to be both just and generous. A criticism of men as writers may not come amiss, just as an offset. A bright article on novelists says that "men, the most brilliant of them as writers, do not know how to dress their women." That they describe their heroines vaguely as "draped in some soft, white, clinging stuff," or as coming "over the carpet, shrouded in a trailing black gown." The writer insists that any man who tries to describe a woman's costume more definitely than this invariably makes woeful blunders, W. D. Howells alone excepted. If readers will bear this criticism in mind, they may find it confirmed by their reading. For instance, the day the criticism was read by this writer the following was clipped from a story by a man of high literary reputation:

I shall never forget that night on which the full force of her beauty took possession of me. She was half reclining on a couch of old gold brocade. Her dress was of crimson plush, cut low and revealing her exquisite neck and arms.

And this crimson! plush!! dress was (by the man of high literary reputation) put on a girl of 17, for an August evening at home!!!

THE PERFECT WOMAN.

The New York Recorder is an able newspaper and all that, but it carries presumption too far when it informs its readers that a woman 5 feet 3 inches tall should weigh 130 pounds, and measure 24 inches around the waist, 31 inches around the chest, 8 inches around the forearm, and so on.

Why should she do all these things? Whence comes this rule? Is it, then, that a woman of 5 feet 3, who has a 22-inch waist and weighs but 120 pounds, may not be beautiful, healthy, strong and well-formed? Shall the lover go around with calipers and tape line to choose a wife? Shall the girl with the 22-inch waist be expected to diet so as to gain the other two inches, or shall the young lady with a plump forearm undergo medical treatment to shrink it to eight inches in diameter?

There is a deal of nonsense about the perfect woman. As well attempt to define a perfect rose or a perfect landscape. The woman of 5 feet 3 inches, or any other height, is a model woman when she possesses a good constitution, keeps herself in health, and is satisfied with the figure nature gave her.—Boston Globe.

A MAN'S STANDARD.

A brother who is taught by his sister to be gentle and considerate of her feelings is not apt to forget his duty towards some one else's sister when he shall take such to his heart and home, writes Edward W. Bok, in The Ladies' Home Journal. This influence every sister has in her power. She should have the same regard for the neatness of her dress at the breakfast table before her brother as she has at dinner before the brother of some other girl. She should be as kind and careful in her conversation to him as she is to the friend which he may bring home with him. Young men very often judge a girl by her sisterly qualities. "I knew she would make a loving wife from the way she treated her brother when, to all appearances, I was apparently unobservant," said a friend of mine recently when I asked what guided him in his choice of a wife. "Tell me what kind of a sister she is, and I will tell you what kind of a wife she will be," is a common saying among men. Many a man has measured a girl's character by that standard, and many a man is doing it to-day.

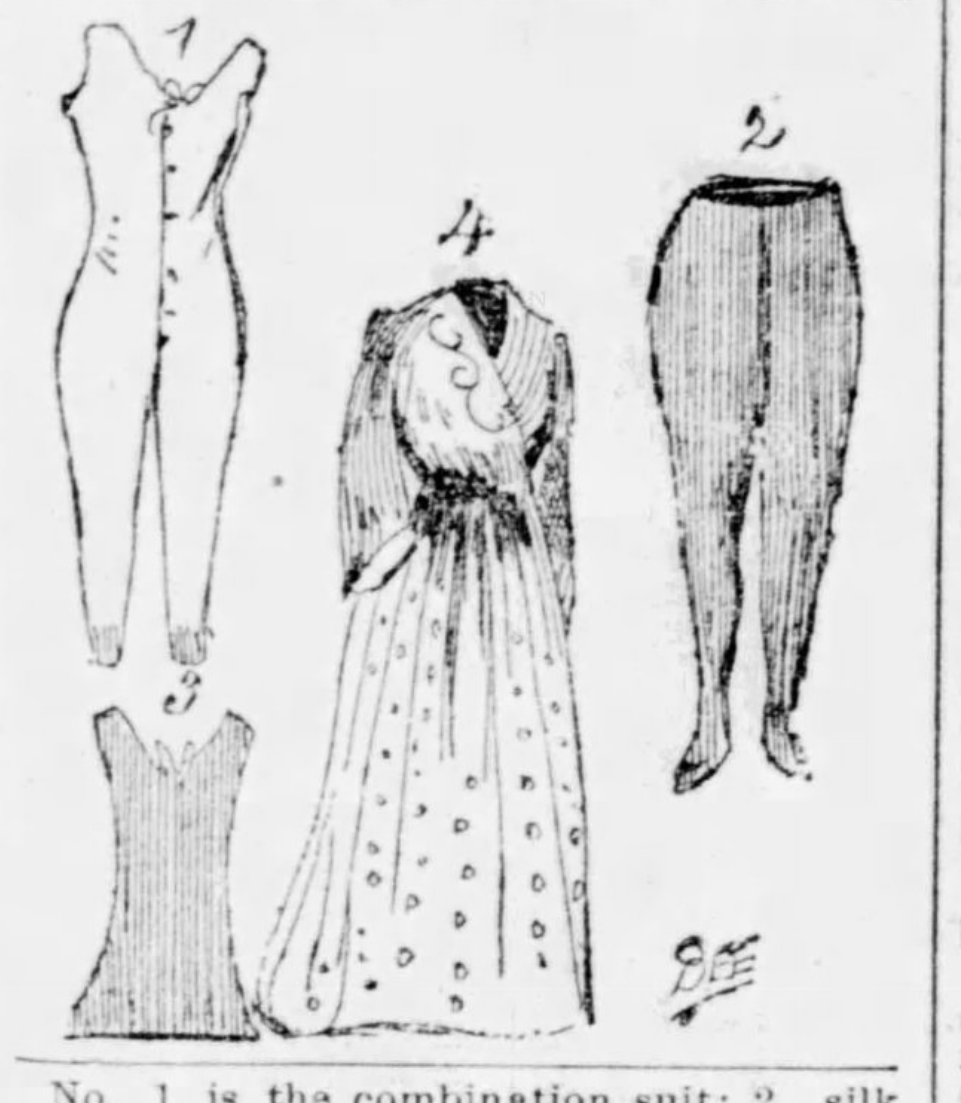
WOMEN RULERS.

It is a curious fact that within three years seven women have practically stood at the head of as many governments. There was the Empress Frederick, during Frederich the Noble's 100 day; there was the empress regent (daughter of Emperor Dom Pedro) who, during her brief regency, freed the slaves of Brazil; there is Queen Victoria (long may she outrank the apparent y-non-apparent heir); the queen regent of Spain (Alphonso is but five years old); the queen regent of Holland, and her daughter, Wilhelmina, who will some day be queen; and there are the queen of Madagascar, the only sovereign who helped our Mary Clement Leavitt on her way, and the queen of the Hawaiian Islands. Meanwhile Lady McDonald, of Canada, has been raised to the peerage, and the great republic has 12,000,000 queens potential—to be queens actual soon, in church and state.—Union Signal.

THE DRESS REFORM.

We may as well talk again of dress reform, for it is really "the" topic of the day, and second in interest to none. Our esteemed brethren of the press are as much interested as we are, apparently, and columns of newspaper space are devoted to descriptions of the new reform dress, prophecies as to its success or non-success, and editorial advice to our sex, the same advice being so contrariwise and conflicting that to try to read it all, let alone understand it, would drive us into lunatic asylums. Bless the men! if they wouldn't talk so much of something they know nothing about, we would be quicker to believe them when they are really giving good advice.

The dress reform crusade begun at Chautauqua is receiving a great deal of unexpected support. The society there established has made headquarters in Chicago, and has about 500 members in that city. The ladies of the Boston dress reform club have given notice that they "will parade, in uniform, the first rainy Saturday in October," though why Saturday is not stated, nor is it known how they will show their new suits if it doesn't happen to rain any Saturday in that month. Young ladies of fashion everywhere are making sweeping changes in their orders for fall wardrobes, with intent to do away with superfluous articles. All this is well, if not made ridiculous by being carried too far, and by too much sounding of trumpets. Under the Chautauqua system four articles are to be worn, sketches of which we reproduce here from the Chicago Times.



No. 1 is the combination suit; 2, silk tights; 3, silk vest; 4, dress. This is absolutely all of woman's dress, under the new regime.

One lady prominently identified with this reform says the dress will be ultimately narrowed down to two articles instead of four. She says:

These two will be the tights and dress. The days of the fourteen articles in women's apparel—just like the 39 articles in the religious creed—are numbered; and we are on the threshold of a revival of learning and classic simplicity in matters of clothing. It will be the dress for the woman, not the woman for the dress.

Mrs. Frank Parker, of Chicago, leader of the Chautauqua movement, has this to say:

"The new crusade means something more than an embroidered bathing suit, as Kate Field intimates. It means something infinitely better than Dr. Mary Walker's unwomanly pantaloons or Elizabeth Cady Stanton's ugly ruffled bloomers.

"Neither has it any sympathy with Ella Wheeler Wilcox's night gown, which is a suggestion of the bedchamber. Our climate is not suited to this Mother Hubbard costume.

"Then, too, in the matter of dress you must take into consideration the prejudice of women. Mrs. Wilcox's idea ignores the principles of beauty. If you want beauty you must follow the outline of the human figure.

"The trouble with Mrs. Jenness-Miller's dress is that the waist line, which is only one-third of the body, is lowered too much. She would put on a boy's vest and a boyish high stiff collar. The upper part of such a figure would look like a sophomore in college and the lower part like a peasant girl.

"Mary Seymour's idea is too nondescript to notice. Such a skirt reaching down to a point near the ankles, with a boy's jacket, vest and tie, would be out of the question. There's no unity in the costume.

"The knickerbocker notion is entirely a too radical departure and is the mere imitation of a boy. The masculine figure is essentially different from the feminine figure, and what would suit a man from the point of comfort would not suit a woman. In the tailor-made costume the figure of a girl is cut into in the middle, and the triangular effect is ugly and stiff.

"We believe we are on the track of the right system and shall adhere to our present plan until we can discover a better one."

This dress reform movement has a beginning farther back than those who are just commencing to give it attention are aware, and there is hardly a question that the majority of women favor it, and that they have been a long time moving in that direction. The change will probably come more slowly than the enthusiasts expect, and this is a good thing. Attention is already directed to the distresses that would accompany a radical and sudden change. Sir Henry Sumner Maine referred in one of his latest works to such a possibility, and said that "a sudden and complete alteration in feminine fashion would work more distress than a general war."

If we can for a moment imagine the manufacture of corsets, the making of linen and cotton underwear, and of all unnecessary garnitures for dress, bonnets, hats and mantels, all stopped in one day, we can see to what Sir Maine referred. But doubtless changes will be gradual, and manufactures and merchants, sewing girls and milliners, will readjust their business and trades to changed conditions. The fittest will survive in this as in every evolution, that doctrine which, cruel to the individual, always works to the good of the race. All hail, then, to the coming day when it will be "the dress for the woman, and not the woman for the dress."

SCRAP BASKET.

BEFORE THE RAIN.

We knew it would rain, for all the morn
A spirit on tender ropes of mist
Was lowering its golden buckets down
Into the vapory amethyst

Of marshes and swamps and dismal fens;
Scooping the dew that lay in the flowers,
Dipping the jewels out of the sea,
To sprinkle them over the land in showers.

We knew it would rain, for the poplars showed
The white of their leaves; the amber grain
Shrunk in the wind; and the lightning now
Is tangled in tremulous clouds of rain.
—Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

A young lady desirous to pursue a course of study in the high school of St. Petersburg must present with her petition the following documents: A paper in which the place of her birth, her age, and the class of society she belongs to are officially attested; a certificate from the institution in which she has finished the middle courses of studies; a certificate of good character, properly indorsed; a certificate from her parents or guardians that they have no objections to her scholarly pursuits; the declaration of responsible persons that she has sufficient means to live upon during the time of her studies; and, finally, two photographs of herself, with her signature, indorsed by two men of good standing who know her personally. The women's high school of St. Petersburg can accommodate 400 students, and no more than 150 new pupils can be admitted every year.

Those who compare the age on which their lot has fallen with a golden age which exists only in their imagination may talk of degeneracy and decay; but no man who is correctly informed as to the past will be disposed to take a morose or desponding view of the present.—Macaulay.

I don't know any better queen than the queen of a bright, happy home—made so mainly by her own efforts. Success and happiness to the house queens all over the land, and may they grow to be more and more awake to their royal privilege.

The world never knows what loud prayers a man can offer until he is called upon to pray for the sins of his neighbor.

The son of General McClellan is a worthy son of a worthy sire. When "Little Mac" died he left only a small property, which Colonel McClellan immediately turned over to his mother in order to secure her comfort in her declining years. He is now making his mark in the world and gathering in its ducats, having the responsible position of treasurer of the Brooklyn bridge.

Pleasant it was, when woods were green,
And winds were soft and low,
To lie amid some sylvan scene,
Where, the long drooping boughs between,
Shadows dark and sunlight sheen
Alternate come and go;
Or where the denser grove receives
No sunlight from above,
But the dark foliage interweaves
In one unbroken roof of leaves,
Underneath whose sloping eaves
The shadows hardly move.—Longfellow.

Be it pleasant or unpleasant, it is none the less an absolute truth—the raison d'etre of a woman is maternity. For this and this alone nature has differentiated her from man, and built her up cell by cell and organ by organ. The continuance of the race in healthy reproduction, together with the fit nourishment and care of the young after birth, is the ultimate end of woman as such, and whatever tells against these functions and reduces either her power or her perfectness is an offense against nature and a wrong done to society, says a writer in the Nineteenth Century. If she chooses to decline her natural office altogether, and to dedicate to other services a life which has no sympathy with the sex of humanity, that comes into her lawful list of preferences and discords. But neither then nor while she is one with the rest, a wife and mother like others, is she free to blaspheme her assigned functions; nor to teach the young to blaspheme them; nor yet to set afoot such undertakings as shall militate against the healthy performance of her first great natural duty and her first great social obligation.

OVER OUR TEACUPS.

While the feminine world moves toward simplicity in dress, men are thinking of changing their one or two stiff and unvarying costumes for something more elaborate and picturesque. It will be a whirligig of things, indeed, if we can one day chide our men-kind for their "frivolity in dress," their "unnecessary extravagance," and all the rest of it. Here is what the Philadelphia Times thinks and prophesies:

Such torrid weather as this raises the speculation whether a movement for a rational summer dress for men is not one of the possibilities of the future. There has been a remarkable display of common sense on the subject within a few years past, and the advent of the flannel shirt may perhaps fix the beginning of a complete breaking with the time-honored custom of endeavoring to adapt the costume of the European to the climate of the subtropics. Even when relieved by the flannel shirt, we are still improperly clad for such temperatures as those we suffer under. We irritate the weary and fevered pulses of the wrist with cuffs and bind about the neck with collars, boiling the blood in the two great arteries of the latter until suffering human nature is driven to the absurdly conceived remedy of thrusting a handkerchief between the suffering part and its tormentor, a proceeding which, of course, only makes matters worse. The ideal costume for these days would be of silk, with wide trousers and a wide-throated, short-sleeved smock. Of course a business man who should appear to-day or to-morrow in such a rig would be stared at for a Parsee or a Chinese Mandarin. Still, the business man who five years ago had exhibited himself in flannels and a sash would have seemed just as great a guy. The world moves, and we may be comfortable yet.

Chatter.

It is said that there are now 72 women preachers in the United States.

Miss Antoinette Knaggs, a college educated young woman of Ohio, owns and manages a farm of 200 acres.

All undergarments are more nearly fitted to the figure than they have ever been. Even nightgowns are belted, though loosely, or are sloped in about the waist.

A study of footwear on the streets nowadays attests the popularity of low-cut shoes with women, five pairs of these being worn to one pair four or five years ago.

The motion of Sir Henry Parkes in favor of granting the right of suffrage to women in New South Wales has been rejected by a vote of 57 to 34 by the legislative assembly.

Constantine Constantinovitch, a Russian grand duchess, has been compelled to leave Russia with her two children because she resisted persecutions instituted to force her to join the Greek church.

Secretary Bayard's daughter, the Countess Lewenhaupt, intends to pass the fall and possibly the winter in Sweden. It is not improbable that she will make her permanent home in King Oscar's kingdom.

Each year of Chief Justice Fuller's residence in Washington has witnessed the debut of one of his seven charming daughters. This year Miss Mary Fuller returns from her long stay in Berlin to enter society at the capital.

More than 5,000 ladies in England are competing for the prizes offered for a design for the best cycling costume, the best shooting costume, the best golf costume, the best walking costume, the best tea gown and the best out-door cloak.

Miss Mary Proctor, daughter of the late Richard A. Proctor, has entered the newspaper field as a contributor of scientific articles. The widow of Mr. Proctor has been appointed curator of the Proctor memorial observatory, at San Diego, Cal.

The Astor family estimate their laces to be worth $300,000. Mrs. A. T. Stewart estimated her at $200,000. Mrs. Vice President Morton considers hers worth $100,000. Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts and Mrs. ex-Secretary Whitney have costly and rare collections in lace.

Many women get the benefit of the appearance of an Oxford tie without the ankle exposure, by donning some of the light and pretty overgaiters with them. In this way a woman is able, with but little outlay of money, to secure many changes of the upper covering with but one pair of shoes.

Dr. Alice McLaren, of London university, who has been appointed to Leith hospital, Edinburg, is the first woman elected to the staff of a general hospital in Great Britain, and the first woman in Scotland to any hospital. The doctor was educated at the London school of medicine and took her university degrees with high honors.

A prize, established years ago by the Cobden club, is annually competed for in England, under the direction of one or other of the universities. The prize is awarded to the author of the best essay on some economic subject, and it turns out this year that the successful competitor is a women, Miss Victorine Jeans, of Manchester.

The Woman's clinic, of Washington, D. C., has filed a certificate of incorporation, the object being the establishment of an institution for the medical and surgical treatment of women, (and children under 5 years of age) by women physicians, and to establish a hospital and sanitarium for such. The number of trustees is to be 31.

The newest silk petticoats, so dainty and comfortable for summer wear, are of the feather-weight wash silks in narrow stripes of a color with white, and are especially liked in clear gray, blue, pink and pale yellow. They are made in sheath shape, the front and sides fitted at the top by darts, and are finished with welting-cord instead of a clumsy belt.

A fad of the season is the use of yellow, pearl, white and lavender chamois gloves, plain or stitched with black. They cannot be worn as close fitting as kid gloves, as they are not elastic. They soil easily, but the yellow and white especially wash well with a little care in using refined soap and drying on the hands to keep them in shape, if not the owner of kid gloves lasts.

The complexion of the Parisian woman has undergone a noticeable change for the better, not altogether attributable to her art in applying artificial tints to her once sallow epidermis. The lady of social place lives like an anchorite, they say, on a most limited diet, drinking scarcely anything but milk, or, if stimulant is needed, using a little pure whisky and water instead of wine. Hearty meat is renounced in favor of chicken or game, and only the most easily digested foods are eaten.

One of the prettiest of the little cottages occupied by the members of the Onteora colony in the Catskills, is that built by Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the editor of St. Nicholas. It is an unconventional abode that shelters its owner for five months in the year and gives her much more genuine comfort than she finds in her city home. There are plenty of hammocks about the cottage, books in profusion, and a large hearth on which a welcome wood fire crackles on frosty evenings. One room serves for dining room, parlor and living room in the cottage.

The woman doctor is getting herself covered with glory over the sea. The millionaire merchant, Herr von Donner, has presented his native city, Hamburg, with $500,000 with which to found a woman's hospital in honor of the famous woman physician, Dr. Michelsen, whose skill, it is believed, saved the life of Frau von Donner. And in England the gracious Princess Christian, who has unsuccessfully submitted to all sorts of medical treatment for the cure of an aggravated form of nervous disease with which she was afflicted, has finally placed herself in the hands of Dr. Julia Mailland, specialist in nervous disorders, and with such a satisfactory results that all the daughters of Æsculapius will find henceforth a warm friend in her royal patient.

HEADACHE SPONGED AWAY.

Nervous headache is often called woman's curse. The hard day's shopping, the day when everything in the household "went wrong," the afternoon spent in paying calls, or a day of ceaseless toil with the needle, all these are apt to end in the state mentioned, to the great discomfort of husband and family, and still greater to the sufferer herself.

Bromides are the most common resort in such a case, but they soon lose their effect. A sponge and hot water will effect the best cure of all, if properly used.

First, fasten the hair high on the head, to keep it dry as possible. Have the water just as hot as can be borne, soak the sponge, and place it at the back of the neck. Apply it also behind the ears, where centre most of the nerves and muscles of the head; and these will be found to soften and relax most deliciously. Often the pain will be relieved in a few minutes.

Then, in the same manner, bathe face and temples; and when through, give the face a dash of cold water. Afterward, if possible, darken the room and lie down. You will be apt to fall into a gentle slumber, from which to arise refreshed and strengthened, with all trace of nervousness gone.

The face bath with hot water is far better than any cosmetic; it restores to the face color and smoothness of outline, and helps to keep away wrinkles. It quickens the circulation, and keeps the pores open and the skin perfectly clean, and if you are expecting to attend an evening party, after such a day of wear, and view with dismay the drawn lines of the face and eyes and the hollow looks of the latter, try this remedy, not neglecting the nap, if possible, and great will be the change thereafter in your appearance. The lines will be gone, and the look of distress; the soft healthful color will come again to the cheek and lip, and a restful and rested look return to the eyes, and you will be once more in a condition to enjoy, and better yet, to be enjoyed.

FAIR GROUNDS ADDITION

At No Time in the History of Toledo

Have there been such rare opportunities for the prudent investor to place his money in land as at present. Toledo property is away down at rock bottom figures. Don't fail to take advantage of these prices as they are sure to go up.

Fortunes Have Been Made

By judiciously investing a few dollars in real estate, and the secret of success in often buying in a growing locality at a low figure, and holding the property

Why Don't You Buy a Home?

You may try to get around it by saying that you cannot afford it. This is nonsense as every one of us spends more money needlessly every month than the small payment required to secure a lot.

Houses Built on Monthly Payments

With a small down payment. If you are worth $5 a month you are good for a lot in Fair Ground Addition. With the New Depot, Electric Street Ry. Water and City Gas this part of the city is bound to go ahead and prices will be from 50 to 100 per cent. higher a year later.

Tebeau Resigns.

Denver, Col., Aug. 22.—Manager and Captain Tebeau, of the Denver Base Ball club, resigned his position to-day, but will remain with the club and play first base. It is not known who the new captain will be, but Sim Cantrell will act as manager the rest of the season. The cause of Tebeau's resignation is the kick made by the players last night when, upon receiving their salary, they found they had been fined amounts ranging from $5 to $100 for "lushing," while Tebeau who, they claim was the worst drinker in the club, was not fined at all.

It Is True.

St. Louis, Aug. 21.—The announcement made by the United Press yesterday that representatives of the National league and American association were to hold a meeting at Washington next week to compromise the differences at present existing between the two organizations created quite a sensation all over the country. The local magnates were surprised that the scheme was made public and the place for holding the meeting may be changed.

It is learned to-day that the association will demand the right to keep teams in Boston and Philadelphia, Cincinnati, will be surrendered to the league and the association will ask for a team in Brooklyn.

May Have Been Murder.

Ironton, O., Aug. 22.—A terrible occurrence has almost driven the place wild with excitement. George Hamilton and his wife went visiting, leaving their three children, Heslie, Edith and Emma, aged 8, 4 and 2 years respectively.

After a lengthy search the parents found the three little ones in an old tool chest, where they had died from suffocation. The mother is almost insane in her grief. A stick fastened in the staple of the chest indicates murder, and the police are investigating the case.

Destitute Jews.

Hamburg, Aug. 22.—Twenty families of exiled Russian Jews arrived here Wednesday in most destitute circumstances. They tell a most pitiful tale of hardship and suffering. While crossing the Russian border they were set upon by Polish and Russian outlaws, robbed of everything they had, besides having their handsome young women abducted. They are in charge of the Jewish relief society here, which will send them to America in a few days.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Lima, O., Aug. 22.—A young man answering the description of the Columbus Grove bank robber and murderer, was arrested last evening at New Washington, Crawford county, 14 miles north of Bucyrus. He will be held until morning, when he will have preliminary hearing. Cashier Maple has intelligence that he is no doubt the right man.

Fatally Shot.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 22.—Harry Wright, a young man living at Little Britain, was fatally shot yesterday afternoon by James M. Jordan of Cecil county, Md., just across the state line. Jordan's motive was revenge. Wright was at work in a cornfield near Jordan's house when shot.

OFFICE OF THE TOLEDO BEE, }
TOLEDO, O., Aug. 22. }

London wheat market opening firm. California higher. French country markets strong. Weather, improving. Liverpool wheat quiet. Quotations ½ pence lower. Corn quiet and lower.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 936,772 bu, compared with 313,722 bu on the same day last year.

The receipts at San Francisco in the week ending August 12 were 570,205 bu of wheat and 22,478 bbls flour. The exports were 666,401 bu of wheat, of which five cargoes were to France, one to Belgium and one to Queenstown. The exports from July 1 to August 12 inclusive were 3,068,890 bu of wheat and 152,336 bbls of flour, compared with 1,616,815 bu of wheat and 138,723 bbls flour in the corresponding period in 1890.

Beerbohm's London Corn Trade List of August 11 says: It may be necessary to mention that, although in last Friday's review an exportable surplus from the United States of 200,000,000 bu, based on the assumption of a total crop of 585,000,000 bu, was purposely set forth in order to show the effect, if true, of such an immense crop on the ensuing season's trade; the writer by no means pinned his faith to that estimate, and is, indeed, inclined to believe that the crop will not exceed 550,000,000 to 560,000,000 bu, and the surplus be not more than 184,000,000 bu.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal points are 623,040 bu in excess of the corresponding Saturday in 1890.

The receipts of grain in the week at eight principal western points have been as follows: Wheat, 5,879,000 bu; corn, 2,157,000 bu; oats, 2,494,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1890 wheat 1,910,000 bu; corn, 2,320,000 bu; oats, 3,103,000 bu.

The export clearances yesterday, at two Atlantic ports were 437,242 bus of wheat and corn to an aggregate of 550,000 bus.

The exports of wheat in this week at four Atlantic ports are wheat 4,304,000 bus. Corn 252,000 bus. Previous week wheat 3,536,000 bus; corn 407,000 bus.

English markets as reported herein are quiet and rather lower for wheat and corn.

The receipts of wheat at eight principal western points, from July 15 to August 22, have been 34,000,000 bu, compared with 12,000,000 bu in the corresponding period of 1890.

The markets for grain in this country have developed no new features of consequence and have been, on the whole interesting and very quiet. Prices have not materially varied, but have worked in favor of buyers and closed a little lower.

In New York prices of August and September wheat close ⅛c lower and September corn ⅞c lower. In Chicago, August and September wheat close ½c@⅝ lower, and September corn 1¾c lower.

The Lake Shore elevator is becoming crowded, and the road declines to take grain at present consigned to that elevator, but will deliver to the Wabash or C. H. & D. elevators. Shippers can thus consign their wheat and which will receive prompt attention.

The trading in wheat futures on our market to-day, has been light, and the prevailing prices have been a shade easier, and close for August and September ¼c lower than yesterday and December steady. On the call August wheat sold at $1 04¾ and December at $1 07. After the call August sold at $1 04½ and December at $1 05½; September at $1 04¼ and closed at $1 05½; December at $1 07 and closed at $1 07¾. Dr. Clark, the Botanic Specialist,
Eleven years at his Toledo Office Parlors

Patronize no longer, advertising quacks, who infest our city for a few months and with their accumulated spoils depart.

Dr. Clark cures syphilis, gonorrhea, loss of manhood and power, spermatorrhea, night emissions, cancers, sores, liver, kidney and blood diseases.

Special diseases of both men and women positively cured. Dr. Clark is the only botanic specialist in the state. If you mean business and wish to be cured call and see us and have a friendly talk, and see what can be done for you.
